

Ottawa Sees U.S. Vote 'Policy Protest'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Outcome of the United States voting is interpreted here as a "dissatisfaction" with things as they are in that country, both in the economic and foreign policy fields.

Domestically the American voter was reacting against unemployment and the recession. In the foreign policy field he was apparently casting a vote against the Dulles "brink of war" policies.

How the election will affect Canada is difficult to assess, government sources said. They doubted that there would be little immediate reaction as far as this country was concerned.

The sweeping victory for the Democrats, however, means that it will be easier for the Democrats in Congress to get their ideas through that House.

A two-thirds vote in both the Congress and Senate is required to override the presidential veto. The Canadian government was watching with interest to see if the Democrats would roll up a sufficient majority to be able to override the veto. It was expected that the results in Alaska will play an important role because the Democrats might need representation from that new state in order to have sufficient numbers to beat the veto.

Because this was a mid-term election, however, authorities here did not look for any major changes in American policy.

A suggestion that because the Democrats are traditionally a low-tariff group, there might be an easing in trade restrictions is conceded as a possibility. But the southern Democrats are becoming high tariff in their outlook, with the development of industry in the south and changes in cotton markets.

Their high-tariff ideas would offset the low-tariff approach of the northern Democrats. But traders in this country, who are incurably optimistic, are hopeful that the election outcome will strengthen Eisenhower in his stand against rabid Republicans who want more protection for American industry.

In a mid-term election domestic issues decide the outcome rather than questions of foreign policy. In this election Canadian authorities believe that unemployment and the recession had the biggest impact. The voters went out to register discontent with those economic conditions, knowing that their vote would not overthrow the administration.

President Eisenhower in the past has enjoyed the support of the large vote in the United States of those who want no war and no policies that might lead to war. There are indications that Republicans with Mr. Dulles "brinkmanship" may have lost that vote, leading to the big victories for the Democrats.

Mr. Dulles will continue in charge of American foreign policy under President Eisenhower and as a consequence Canadians look for no great change in that policy.

There may be a slight softening in the United States antagonism to Red China, as a result of the elections. However, it was not expected to go so far as a move towards recognition. But the reaction of the American voter towards the U.S. position in the Formosa Straits might bring about a change in the administration's readiness to support Chiang Kai-Shek in his risky gamble with the Reds.

There is some worry in agricultural quarters here that the new American Congress might swing away from the anti-subsidy policies that the Eisenhower administration has been seeking to put across. Should this take place it could lead to increased American surpluses and more trouble for Canada in disposing of her surpluses.

Democrats Rout GOP

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democratic Party, riding a wave of popular support that rivalled Dwight D. Eisenhower's Republican presidential victory six years ago, has taken over control of both Houses of the United States Congress in its greatest strength since the Roosevelt era.

With all of Tuesday's contests for one-third of the Senate seats decided this morning, the Democrats had the heaviest representation in the Upper House since Franklin D. Roosevelt won his third term in 1940.

In the lower House of Representatives they tacked almost 100 seats to their majority of 35 in the outgoing House, all of whose 435 seats were up for renewal.

The pattern was followed in the voting for the governorships of 32 states with New York a notable exception, where Nelson Rockefeller beat Governor Averell Harriman of the Democrats, in a "battle of millions."

But the Democratic sweep

brought down Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland in California, running for governor, and former governor Goodwin Knight, running for senator.

Closely linked to some partisan issues were right-to-work referendums outlawing compulsory union shops in six states—all except Kansas defeated the measures.

The defeat of the president's party put on record Eisenhower's steady decline in influence since he won personal victory in 1956 for his second term but failed then to carry his party to power in the houses of Congress.

But as Eisenhower's star was setting, Republicans got a glimmer of hope from Rockefeller's personal victory.

Rockefeller for President?

Rockefeller's down-to-earth campaigning in New York City upset the traditional Democratic pattern of voting in the country's largest metropolis as it knocked the Democrats out of control of the most populous state and brought immediate speculation that the Republicans may seize upon Rockefeller as a popular figure to lead them in the next battle for the presidency in 1960.

Eisenhower himself cannot by law run for a third term, and in view of the near-record vote hailed by the Democrats as a vote of non-confidence in his administration, Vice-President Richard Nixon may find the going rough to get the Republican nomination for the top office two years from now.

Adlai Stevenson, twice defeated by Eisenhower as the Democrats' presidential candidate, hailed the result as a mandate for the opposition party "to produce thoughtful, creative leadership in a dangerous time."

He attributed the Democratic victory in the congressional and state governorship contests as reflecting public misgiving about Republican leadership at home and abroad, the high cost of living and "corruption, or at least that some ethical standards were not fulfilled."

This last was one of the few references in the campaign and its aftermath to the resignation of Eisenhower's aide, Sherman Adams. His name was linked with that of Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine in investigations of government favors sought by the latter.

An early indication of the tide was the victory in sterner Republican Vermont of the first Democratic congressman sent to Washington from that state in 106 years.

An intra-party dispute was blamed in large measure for the Republican defeat in California which saw the eclipse of Knowland, one of the 1960 presidential aspirants.

Attorney-General Edmund (Pat) Brown defeated Knowland for the state governorship. Knowland's first defeat in 25 years of political campaigning.

Knowland and the outgoing Republican governor, Goodwin Knight, who lost to Democrat Claire Engle for the U.S. Senate seat up for election in November, continued on Page 2

ELECTION REACTION

Spend Advocates Supported — Ike

From Times News Services

Here's the reaction from the U.S. and Europe on the big Democratic victory at the polls Tuesday:

President Eisenhower: The electorate obviously voted for spending advocates in giving the Democrats greater control. He called any trend toward bigger federal spending a dangerous one.

He emphatically replied "not at all" when asked whether he expects to have additional trouble during the next two years in dealing with Congress.

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon: "Republicans worked for two months. Our opponents worked for two years. The result was inevitable."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler: "The voters repudiated President Eisenhower's leadership and Republican campaign tactics. They registered their satisfaction with the constructive record of the Democratic-controlled 85th Congress."

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn: "There was no single issue nationally . . . the main trouble was not enough Republican votes. We have no alibis."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson: "The American people have decisively endorsed the constructive and confident leadership of the Democratic Congress. They have made it clear that the people do not want a veto of the 20th century."

Adlai E. Stevenson: "The Democratic party has received a mandate to produce thoughtful, creative leadership in a dangerous time."

Labor unions: Acclaimed returns as ensuring a Congress that can wreck all existing state right-to-work laws at one swoop and enact new social legislation.

London Evening Standard: "Landslide is blow to Ike."

London Star: "Democrats sweep to victory," attributing the outcome "largely to anti-Eisenhower feeling."

Stockholm trade union paper Aftonbladet: "Without doubt President Eisenhower's regime lost face to a high degree during the last years, not only abroad but also in the eyes of the Americans."

20-YEAR SCHEME DRAFTED

$5 Million Plan For City Parking

New Facilities For 3,000 Cars

By JOHN MIKA

A $5,000,000 20-year development program to provide 11 downtown off-street parking sites for more than 3,000 cars without using a cent of tax money was presented Tuesday afternoon by the city engineering department.

First phase of the program, providing space for 1,000 cars at a cost of $1,785,000 could be completed within two years if all goes well, half of it by Christmas next year.

The plan will go to next week's city council meeting with recommendations to prepare the way for launching of the first phase.

The developments would include ground level sites—the first on the present main fire hall property—and four-storey parking garages—the first on View between Douglas and Blanshard.

The whole program could be financed entirely from parking revenues and doubling the present street parking meter rates.

Some streets would be closed to provide pedestrian shopping malls and eventually the Causeway would be widened by earth fill for an extension of Wharf Street as a truck route to James Bay area.

The program, presented by city engineer James Garnett to a joint meeting of public works committee and businessmen, would "revitalize and beautify" the downtown shopping area.

A net gain of more than 2,000 parking spaces over present facilities would be achieved by the total program. New spaces, enlargement of some present facilities and loss of others would be involved.

Four-Tier Garage for 350 Cars

First parking garage—a four-tier ramp facility for 350 cars—would straddle View Street off Blanshard. The street would be closed on both sides of Douglas, which would be the only road cutting through an area of five city blocks.

Pedestrian shopping malls would run from the parking garage down to Douglas and from Douglas down to Broad, where a short pedestrian mall would stretch along Broad from View halfway to Fort.

Total cost of the development would be $875,000, including $290,000 for the parking garage and $585,000 for erection of new stores to replace those torn down. The latter amount would be self-liquidating.

Car access to the garage would be off Blanshard with pedestrian malls and arcades giving access to Fort, Yates, Douglas and Broad.

Parking rate recommended for the tiered garages was 10 cents for the first hour.

But Mr. Garnett said he expected most shoppers would not have to pay anything for the parking because many stores probably would pay parking tickets of their customers. This could be done by stores stamping the tickets and paying for them when billed.

To make certain the garages would be used, fully, street meter rates would have to be increased to the same charge.

This would involve increasing all meter rates to five cents per half-hour. One-hour meters would still be used. Most meter rates are set at five cents per hour now.

Present meter revenues average more than $100,000 annually.

Revenue Would Finance Program

By doubling the revenue, the entire offstreet parking program could be financed without using any of the city's present revenue.

The street meter increase, recommended to coincide with opening of the View Street garage, would be more than adequate to pay the cost of the initial development over a period of 15 years.

Surplus from the meter rates and the revenues from the parking garage would be used to finance all the succeeding developments.

Money to start the View

Street garage could be entirely borrowed on the strength of a decision to raise the street meter rates.

Here's how a motorist would use the garage:

Driving into it off Blanshard, he would be given a ticket stub and assigned space by an attendant; the motorist would park, walk out and do his shopping along the pedestrian mall; and, returning, he would present his ticket and pay the charge, unless one of the stores had stamped it, pick up his car and drive off.

Sommers Verdict Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — The jury in the bribery trial of Robert Sommers, former minister of lands and forests, will deliver the final verdicts this afternoon.

Word that the jury was ready with its verdict in the complex case came shortly after noon from the hotel deliberation rooms.

The jury had lunch at the hotel before court was assembled to hear the verdicts.

The nine men and three women have been considering the bribery phases of the case since Tuesday night.

The jury will deliver a total of 57 decisions on 12 charges against individuals and firms alleged to have bribed Sommers for his favor in the issuance of forest management licences while he was in office.

They will also return verdicts on seven counts against the 47-year-old former minister as the alleged recipient of bribe money totalling thousands of dollars.

Sommers, who this same jury convicted of conspiracy last Saturday, was minister from 1952 until his resignation in 1956.

He admits to the receipt of some $7,100 but says the money was loans from his friend Wilson Gray, which were covered by notes and repaid.

Gray, 46-year-old timber brokerage executive, was convicted Saturday along with Sommers on the conspiracy counts and his firms, Pacific Coast—Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, also were found guilty of the same counts.

When the jury delivers its verdicts in the bribery phase of the case, it will mean the windup of Canada's longest trial after 79 actual sitting days.

The presiding judge, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, is expected to order an adjournment for a day or two before passing sentence on those found guilty.

The jury, which took more than 50 hours to reach its verdicts on conspiracy, and then could not agree in the cases of three of the accused, was given the bribery phases of the case late Tuesday. They deliberated for some two hours in the jury room and then retired to their hotel across the street for dinner and more deliberation last night.

Leaders Talk World Trade, NATO Problems

PARIS (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and French Premier Charles de Gaulle met for the first time today.

They held wide-ranging discussions on world problems, including the general's plan for a reorganization of NATO.

A communique said afterwards that "they evoked, in the spirit of old and profound friendship and the alliance which unites the two countries, the present great problems of the world."

A French spokesman said later that the two leaders concentrated on two points:

—De Gaulle's letter to President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan allegedly suggesting a Franco-American-British "triumvirate" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

—The British-backed plan for a European free trade area, which French opposition has nearly wrecked.

Informed sources had said earlier that Diefenbaker would tell de Gaulle that the general's proposal was unacceptable to Canada, which is also a member of NATO.

The sources had said that Canada was not in favor of an actual reorganization of NATO machinery as much as increased use of what already exists.

Springhill Buries Her Dead

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — The sun shone brightly on Springhill Tuesday.

The air was still. Smoke rose straight up from chimneys. Peace seemed everywhere.

But there was no peace. It was the 12th day. Springhill still buried her dead.

On the green lawns of the cemetery halfway down the hill, grave-diggers worked in relays. Fresh mounds of earth scarred the far slope.

A police car led a funeral cortege down the hill. There were two hearses. The Embree brothers, they said. Eleven funerals Monday, seven Tuesday.

Meanwhile recovery of nine bodies from the crushed No. 2 coal mine continued slowly and painfully today.

One hundred men have been saved. The known death toll is 74.

And over on the other side of the hill, out of sight of the cemetery, traffic moved as usual, but people stood in little groups on the corners, talking.

A man with greying hair and a flushed face asked another man:

"Why does God let such things happen?"

Another funeral passed. In the cemetery, the grave-diggers worked on. Another funeral moved through the gates.

Downtown, flags flew at half-staff on the Miners' Hall, the Lodge Hall, the Post Office.

Smoke rose from the chimneys—smoke of coal brought here from Sydney. Springhill, a town that lived on coal, had none of her own.

Her last coal mine was wrecked, a tomb for her men.

DEMOCRATS

California, had switched candidates. Knowland won a victory in the party primary earlier this year which determined the Republican candidate for the governor's chair, contending that "labor-boss rule" Knight, deprived of the chance to run again for governor, then tried for the Senate seat vacated by Knowland.

Labor was also an issue in Michigan, where Democratic Governor G. Mennen Williams campaigned on the Republican's recession record in the automobile industry's centre, and won a record sixth consecutive term, even though the worst of the American industrial slump appears over now.

The "right to work" proposals were so labelled by their supporters because they would make illegal compulsory union membership in order to hold jobs under labor contracts.

Heavily industrialized Ohio swamped the measure and the proposal was downed handily in California, Washington and Colorado. Idaho voters turned it down by a narrow margin and only Kansas approved the ban on union shops.

Besides Kansas, 17 other states, mostly in the South, have approved such legislation.

Personality factors were prominent in the national voting. Republican stalwart John W. Bricker lost his Senate seat in a Democratic landslide in Ohio, but his fellow old-guard rightwinger, Senator Barry Goldwater, rode roughshod over his Democratic opponent in Arizona in a reversal of the national trend.

On the Democratic side, prominent winners were Senators John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri, both being talked up as hopefuls for the next presidential campaign.

The Republicans fared best in the more conservative eastern states despite their shocking congressional defeat in Vermont. They gained the Rhode Island governorship besides that of New York and preserved Senate seats in Vermont, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. But in the western farm belt they lost influence, with only Nebraska and North Dakota remaining as islands of Republicanism in the Plains states.

They held out locally in Arizona, Idaho, Oregon and Wyoming against the Democratic landslide that rumbled to the Pacific coast.

Tunis Claims Invasion By French

TUNIS (Reuters)—Tunisian sources said tonight French forces estimated at two regiments and supported by tanks have entered Tunisian territory from Algeria in the Bou Jaber frontier area.

Sadok Mokkadem, Tunisian secretary of state for foreign affairs, made a strong protest to the French embassy here against "the violation of national soil by French ground forces," the sources said.

The sources said earlier that the Tunisian frontier village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef had been under mortar fire.

First reports spoke of some casualties.

Ten Thousand Police Battle Mob in Tokyo

TOKYO (Reuters)—Ten thousand police tonight tried to restrain milling masses of demonstrators as they snaked through Tokyo in protest against a government bill to increase police powers.

Police reinforcements swarmed into the capital to keep order. It was one of the city's biggest demonstrations since the end of the war.

OTTAWA GIVES $100,000 TO DISASTER FUND

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to donate $100,000 to the Springfield, N.S., disaster fund, Acting Prime Minister Green announced after a cabinet meeting today.

He told reporters that aside from this contribution, the central administration will cooperate with the Nova Scotia government to consider what other federal aid should be provided for the "people who acted so courageously in this tragedy."

WASHINGTON TIMBER PRACTICES ATTACKED

OLYMPIA (AP)—Washington's timber management practices came under fire Tuesday from state Representative Gene Neva, Aberdeen Democrat.

Neva charged that the state is losing 47 per cent of its possible revenue from timber sales because of low appraisals.

He contended that the Department of Natural Resources employs about 200 persons to do the work 70 employees were doing before timber and land functions were consolidated.

Neva also claimed that the department requires too large deposits from timber purchasers, has forced timber sales on a depressed lumber market and put up timber for sale in tracts too large for small operators to bid on.

Witnesses Sought In Hit-Run Injury

Witnesses to hit-run traffic accident on Cook Street Sunday night are sought by city police, in an effort to track down the fugitive motorist.

Mrs. Elizabeth Trull, 81, of 1024 Pendergast, is in "good" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple injuries and a broken left leg.

The woman was in collision with a car as she attempted to cross between Suttie and Oxford at 5:45 p.m.

Driver of the car got out to look at her lying in the street, then drove from the scene. He was chased by another motorist.

After forcing the fleeing car to the curb on Moss near Richardson, 11 blocks away, motorist Harry Morris, 1211 Chapman, chased its driver on foot between two houses but lost sight of him in the dark. Police located the car's registered owner Monday, but were no closer to identifying its driver today.

Rockefeller Upset Co-Millionaire

NEW YORK (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller's election as governor by a majority of more than 500,000 votes skyrocketed him today as a possibility for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

The multi-millionaire's overwhelming victory over wealthy Democratic Governor Averell Harriman stood "out particularly because of its contrast with Republican defeats in other states."

It also appeared to knock out whatever chance Harriman may have had for the Democratic presidential nomination two years hence. Harriman had sought the nod in 1952 and 1956.

The campaign spearheaded by Rockefeller also led to election of Republican representative Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester as U.S. senator. Keating, regarded as an under-dog throughout the campaign, defeated Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan for the office Republican Senator Irving M. Ives is vacating for reasons of health.

Returns from 11,510 of 11,525 election districts gave: Rockefeller 3,115,186; Harriman 2,559,821.

Rockefeller has insisted—and repeated today—that he is not interested in 1960 possibilities and that he has "no other intention" than to serve his four-year term as governor.

Rockefeller told an early-morning press conference he intends to lead the Republican party in New York state and he expects to head the state delegation to the next Republican national convention.

Rockefeller and his backers went on the theory from the outset that New York voters never would elect a so-called conservative.

Like Harriman, he spoke out against "right-to-work" laws, in favor of continued controls on rents and against any increase in New York's 15-cent subway fare.

Harriman ran with the Liberal party as well as the Democratic party nomination.

Moon Shot 'Preview' Explodes

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Thor intermediate-range missile—the heart of moon-rocket Pioneer—blew apart with a brilliant flash shortly after launching early today.

It was the fifth straight time that a ballistic weapon had exploded in recent months, shattered sections of the missile plunged into the Atlantic just off the cape.

The U.S. Air Force announced a malfunction occurred about 30 seconds after launching and that the missile was destroyed by the range safety officer.

The 65-foot rocket blasted aloft at 3:53 a.m. It began to veer left and right almost immediately.

After about 25 seconds, still pouring out a thin trail of flame, the Thor suddenly jerked to the left. At that point, the range safety officer pressed a destruction button and the missile burst apart.

SHOWER OF DEBRIS

Flaming debris rained into the water. A huge black cloud hung against the Florida sky. Missile men hoped the launching would give them a preview of the next air force Pioneer moon rocket shoot which the National Aeronautic and Space Administration says will take place late this week.

In an adjacent tower less than 500 yards away stood a multi-stage Thor that is believed to be moon rocket No. 3.

Today's Thor was aimed at an impact area 1,500 miles across the Atlantic test range.

Vote of No-Confidence

IF HISTORY IS A RELIABLE guide, yesterday's Congressional election in the United States presages the end of the Republican Administration two years hence.

Though he was not himself a candidate, Mr. Eisenhower's Government has received what appears to be a clear vote of no-confidence from the people. All the President's popularity and his vigorous appeal for support failed to alter the basic fact of American politics—that the Democrats are, and have long been, the majority party.

In retrospect it can be seen that Mr. Eisenhower's two victories in 1952 and 1956 were almost entirely personal but even his broad coat-tails, as the saying goes, could not carry his party with him in the last three elections.

The first result of the Democratic sweep will be to place the opposition in complete control of the new Congress.

While the Democrats controlled the last Congress, their majority was small, they co-operated fully with the Republican President and they seldom ventured to attack him. Now that they have an overwhelming mandate their attitude undoubtedly will change.

Preparing for the presidential poll of 1960, they will seek to discredit the Administration by every possible means. The Executive will be the captive of the legislature. Senator Lyndon Johnson and Mr. Speaker Rayburn, leaders of the two houses, will probably be as powerful as the President himself, if not more powerful.

The second result of the election is to damage, perhaps fatally, the presidential career of Vice-President Nixon. He, more than the President, led the Republican campaign with all the power of his office and personality, and the campaign was the most dismal failure of modern times.

Moreover, by an odd freak of politics, the Democratic victory at large failed to prevent an extraorinary Republican victory in New York State where, in Mr. Rockefeller, an obvious alternative to Mr. Nixon appeared. The common assumption that the Vice-President will be automatically nominated for the presidency two years from now is no longer valid; still more questionable is the assumption that he could be elected.

It would seem, indeed, that the Democrats have only to find an adequate candidate and they can return to power in 1960. The Democratic nomination has become the great prize of American politics.

Though several eminent men like Senators Kennedy and Symington are seeking it, none yet appears to have the sort of nationwide support required. None has the stature of Mr. Adlai Stevenson, who conceivably may be nominated for the third time.

The convention struggle lies some time ahead. Meanwhile it is clear that the Republicans suffered debacle yesterday mainly, and perhaps unfairly, as a result of the business recession. The old albatross of hard times was successfully hung about the Government's neck, the memories of the thirties were revived and the Democrats managed to appear as the champions of the common man. But no real issue of economic policy was decided.

For Canada the important thing is that the Congress will be dominated by a party which is generally more favorable than the Republicans to abundant international trade and that a foreign policy much criticized in Ottawa has been criticized also by the American people.

Quemoy, Chiang and Mr. Dulles were not decisive factors in the election but they evidently damaged the Administration. In consequence, some modification of foreign policy, in a direction more satisfactory to the Commonwealth, may be anticipated. But the next two years of struggle for power in Washington are likely to be grim, ceaseless and chaotic.

Continued Story

IN THESE COLUMNS IN SEPTEMBER we reprinted a sentence from Finance Minister Donald Fleming's most recent budget speech stating:

"In the absence of immediate inflationary pressures I would not expect any general increase in prices during the balance of 1958."

To the item we added The Canadian Press report of September 4 saying, "the consumer price index equalled the record high at the start of August, its half-point rise being the third largest since the fall of 1957."

From this week's news columns we add The Canadian Press Ottawa report: "Living costs rose to a new high during September, pushing the consumer price index up two-fifths of a point to a record 126 Oct. 1 from 125.6 on Sept. 1."

Trapped By Two Societies

AUSTRALIA HAS BEEN stirred by the tragedy of Albert Namatjira, the aboriginal painter who has been trapped and gravely injured between two civilizations.

Thirty years ago he was a simple native, acting as cook and camel boy for the Melbourne artist, Mr. Rex Battarbee, then touring and painting in Central Australia.

Almost by accident Namatjira picked up the artist's brushes one day and daubed a canvas, transferring to it the scene he saw, through native eyes, around him.

Mr. Battarbee recognized in it the product of a potentially unique genius and taught Namatjira to paint. In the intervening years the native found fame, became a figure in Australia's art world, learned the questionable social graces of cocktail parties, developed a substantial income and an unbalanced thirst.

Over his aboriginal make-up was spread the veneer of whiteman's civilization. He was accepted by patrons of the arts, but in him were ingrained the traditions of his fellow tribesmen.

Shrinking Immigration

LAST YEAR ABOUT 282,000 people came to Canada under the immigration policy then in force. Half-way through this year restrictions were imposed on the influx and the flow dwindled. At the end of 1958 the total is expected to be 125,000.

No plans have yet been announced concerning policy next year. Customarily, announcement is made two months ahead of changes in prospect for the new year.

In other words, at this point Canada either does not know what it will do about immigration in 1959, or is a great deal less enthusiastic about a business pick-up in

As a native he recognized the obligations of a primitive communism. What he gained, he must share with his fellows of the tribe. And that sharing included the liquor he could obtain under a special dispensation of the state which gave him citizenship rights.

Recently a native woman was killed in a drunken brawl. The liquor for the occasion had come from Namatjira. It is an offence in Australia to give liquor to the aborigines.

The native artist was tried, convicted and sentenced to six months in jail. He had broken the whiteman's law to meet the tradition of the tribe.

The case is now being appealed, and unless the appeal is successful, Namatjira will go to prison, suffering not only the confinement but the knowledge that he has failed to conform to the standards of the white people who recognized his artistic work.

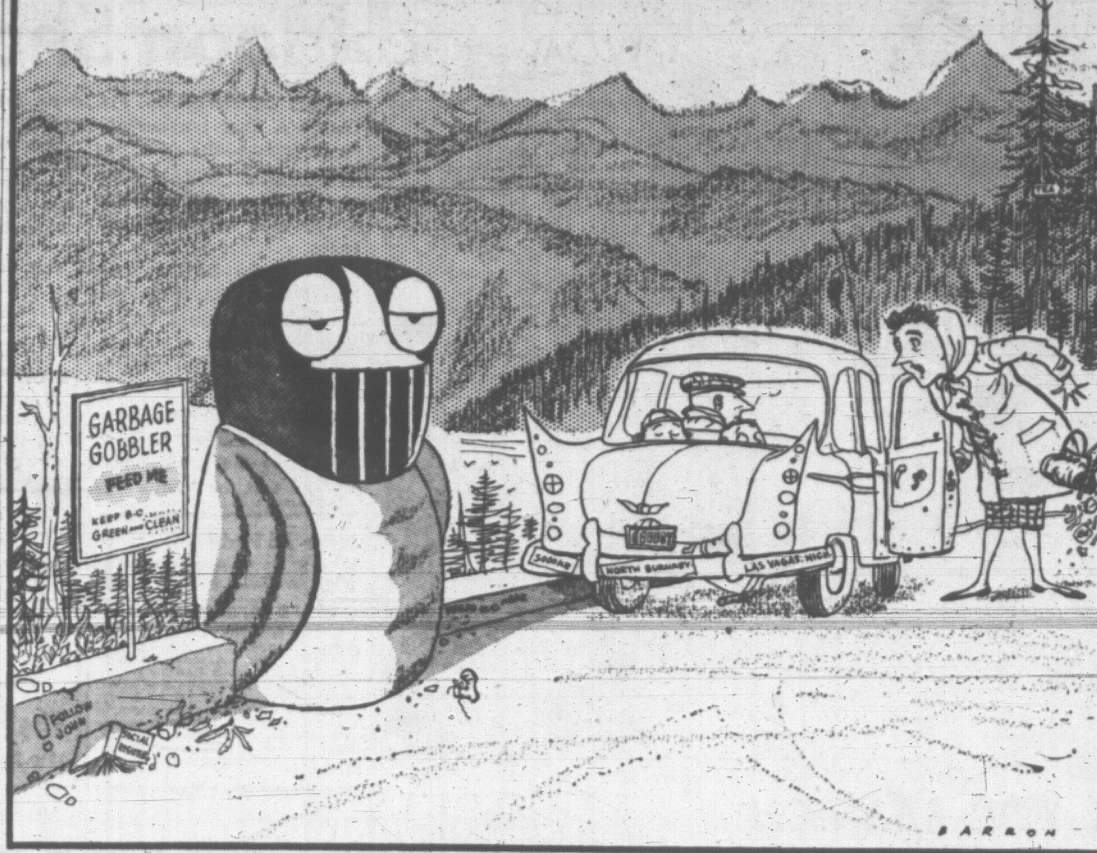

It is a tragedy which should be understood by Canadians who have had opportunity to note parallels in this country on the part of some of our Indians.

1959 than its minister of finance, Mr. Donald Fleming, suggests.

With unemployment high, no one expects a government to open the doors wide to immigrants. It will be noted, however, that harder times have had their direct impact on Mr. Diefenbaker's concepts.

During the election campaign of 1957, Mr. Diefenbaker advocated an intensive immigration policy that would be "expansive rather than restrictive" and suggested that the maximum possible number of immigrants a country could absorb in a year would be about 4 per cent of its population. That number would be about 640,000—a little more than five times the total expected this year.

SIX MONTHS AROUND THE HORN

By B. A. TOBIN

...And Humor From Beginning to End

ONE of the first newspapers to be published for British Columbians was never published in British Columbia. It had a readership of only one, and its editors were all at sea throughout the seventeen issues which made up the life of the journal. But with all these oddities the paper served a good purpose and well earned a place in the history of this province. Its name was "The Emigrant Soldiers' Gazette and Cape Horn Chronicle," and it first appeared on November 6, 1858—100 years ago tomorrow.

Tobin

While I say the paper was published for British Columbians, it might be more correct to say future British Columbians, for they hadn't yet arrived. They were aboard the Thames City, 187 of them—officers, men, wives and children—coming out as the main detachment of the Royal Engineers to make their homes in the new land.

The newspaper was to help while away the six months and two days the voyage lasted, and it seems to have contributed a good deal towards lightening the ordeal of the long journey around the Horn.

The paper was published each Saturday, with the exception of a few missed editions during stops at the Falkland Islands and Valparaiso, and it provides an interesting insight into shipboard life of the time and the measures which a large group of enterprising people took to fight off boredom.

Weekly Report

The "readership of one" was Capt. H. R. Luard, who read the handwritten journal aloud every Saturday night to the company assembled in the main saloon. The editor was Corporal Charles Sinnett, who was assisted by Lieut. H. S. Palmer, and he put together a paper which has rightly been described as "full of intelligence, wit and humor from beginning to end."

Although these folk had never seen British Columbia, they committed themselves fully to the adventure. Five years later, when the Royal Engineers disbanded, only 15 sappers returned to England. The rest had long since decided to make their new life here.

One editorial towards the end of the voyage discussed the features of the country lying ahead of them and expressed thanks that "we were selected to take a part in the expedition for the formation and improvement of a colony which may one day turn out of so great importance to the mercantile world."

From the day of embarkation, once the tears of departure were dry, the men and women of the group looked forward only to their arrival at Esquimaux, from which they would move to the site of what is now New Westminster. To this extent they were British Columbians from their first day at sea.

Dramatic Events

The latter item might seem odd. But one of the most popular features of life aboard the Thames City was the weekly stage presentation, and there was many a coy allusion to Miss Bridget Meade, Miss Mary Benney and Miss Matilda Hazel, whose "beautiful and luxuriant hair... and blooming cheeks" delighted the audiences.

There weren't many beardless sappers in those days and the choice of "female" acting talent must have been restricted.

There was boredom, however, and the problems which it can raise. More than one editorial reference was made to the need for the women to try to get along with one another.

And on January 15, 1859, after a stop at the Falkland Islands, the editor hoped that "should there be any slight difference or ill-feeling now existing, which may have arisen either in the earlier part of our voyage or on shore at the Falkland Islands, it may now be forgotten, and that all will do their best to aid and assist in making the rest of the voyage peaceable and pleasant..."

But there were good times too, and referring to a concert at which someone sang a song about a "land flowing with milk and honey" beyond the River Jordan, the editor commented, "Such a land, we trust, when we look around on the patient faces of the women and children before us, may be found ere long at no great distance from the banks of the River Fraser."

Young Fry

There were 34 children at the start of the voyage and several babies were born at sea. By the end of the third month of the trip, an editorial noted that "We have children of every size and every description on board, children with names and children without names, pink children, and red children, and yellow children, and white children, children who can walk, children who can only toddle, and children who do neither, children who can blow their noses and children who don't blow their noses..."

There were also scare stories, such as that which told of a murder and mutilation near Longboat Alley, where a "middle-aged gentleman was found suspended by the heels, with his throat cut from ear to ear."

It was as good a way as any to describe the passing of a passenger who "had formerly been known by the name of Lamb, and was about to pass as Mutton."

There were references to the salt pork, and weevils, and stale drinking water and monotony of diet. But through it all ran the spirit of adventurers, of men and women sent out to do a job and determined to see it through.

The last edition appeared on April 2, 1859, off the coast of Oregon. The long voyage, "exceeding in distance if not in duration any that has ever before been accomplished by British troops," was nearly over, the work was about to begin.

As an earlier editorial had said, "The Corps looks to us, Her Majesty's Government looks to us, and the Country looks to us, and all expect great things from us."

A century later, we know that the trust was not misplaced.

As Our Readers See It

Overpaid?

I have always noted with interest the views of Mr. Frank Partridge on labor matters. He never misses an opportunity to use your columns to charge that labor is overpaid and that so-called high wages have caused us to lose our markets.

I would like to know if he thinks that the miners of Springhill, who receive about $14 per day and work short time, are overpaid?

Neighborliness

We would like to commend you on your article, "Neighborhood Neighbors," of Wednesday, October 22. We feel it is inspirational to read a little bit of news of this nature, when threats of war and crime usually top the headlines.

We felt, after reading this article, that it would be a tribute to your paper to run a series on neighborliness, to help restore people's faith in humanity.

Lust for Power

Incredible is the speed with which the wheels of the political machine are turning backwards here in Canada. Slowly but surely representative government is being destroyed; a worldwide epidemic truly, now it is an endemic looming disaster in Canada; it is no longer "how are the mighty fallen" but how fast they are procreating. Every province becoming little dictatorships, scions of the menacing paternal plant in Ottawa.

So many of the politicians have not the vaguest idea of the meaning of "Crown" property and all it entails: it stands—or should—as the assets of the people, but through mismanagement and misappropriation it slides onto the debit side for the already plundered taxpayers' responsibility.

It is not here in British Columbia the most urgent point as to what the "Wenner-Grens" etc., have, and are, about to perform, but what the elected government has done to "protect" the peoples interest? Parliament—and in the House—is the place for this disclosing and not as journeyman subsidaries of lawful government.

But the rich are growing richer because of the amalgamation of their kind; the governments are now their middle men and carpet baggers, flitting hither and yon in order to keep—or drive—if possible all thinking people—or "eggheads"—into a dither. Delightful trips all over the world—entourage complete—is now a part of "office" it would seem, and the people are left wondering as to who are looking after their affairs at home. We are in the meantime cluttered up with parasitic bureaucracy, and little tin gods masquerading as government, while the cacophonous "One World" is the biggest Machiavellian economic and political hoax ever perpetrated on the human race, by a small—a very small—minority, obsessed with the lust for power

Pasternak Under Fire

By JOSEPH ALSOP

FOR outsiders, nothing could be more bewildering than the fearful row touched off in Moscow by Boris Pasternak's Nobel Prize. Here is a peaceable, industrious and noble-minded man, who happens to be one of modern Russia's two true poets. (The other, who may also suffer from Pasternak's dangerous award, is Anna Akhmatova.) Being a true, poet, Pasternak has never prostituted his pure talent in the State's service, but in every other way he has been a good, obedient citizen.

Alsop

In "Dr. Zhivago," he has tried to sum up his own experience in the long, terrible, tremendous years of Russia's Communist transformation. The novel is no tract. It is a rich human document, full of life and truth and compassion. Sir Isaiah Berlin, the only competent judge known to this reporter who has read the book in Russian, further describes "Dr. Zhivago" as a great and authentic work of genius.

For this novel, Pasternak is awarded the first Nobel Prize ever given to a Soviet author. And the immediate result is a storm of menace and abuse that really almost equals the storm that was caused in Moscow by the announcement of the Truman Doctrine.

Why? Why? Why? one is almost driven to cry out; for surely all this public indignation is insanely disproportionate, even if Pasternak's talent has never put on the shoddy corset of "socialist realism."

But there is no need for bewilderment, if you look first at those who lead the chorus against Pasternak, and if you then look at how these men must feel at the moment.

The leaders of the chorus, it must be understood, have not been the official leaders of the Soviet state, or their grim official thought-controllers. The chorus leaders have been the other Soviet writers.

Pasternak's fellow craftsmen of letters are the ones who have fallen into a state of eye-rolling, mouth-frothing frenzy, because the outside world has greatly honored one of their number.

By a lucky accident, the way these men must now be feeling was brilliantly foreshadowed by a series of interviews with Soviet writers published under the title "Conversations in Moscow" in the English magazine, Encounter.

The two key interviews were with the official grand old man of Soviet letters, Ilya Ehrenburg, and the Secretary of the Soviet Writers' Union, Alexei Surkov. Both men talked at length about Pasternak, and in a way that was tragically, ironically revealing.

Venomous Comment

Ehrenburg, who might have been a good or even great writer if he had not preferred the rewards of prostitution, made his little, conventional bow to art and truth. Pasternak, he said, was a "great poet" and a writer of "great prose, always full of poetic images." But he added venomously, "Boris Pasternak is the most egocentric person I know."

From the page of the magazine the image leaps out—the old man, in the comfortable Moscow flat that is one of the prostitution's chief rewards, knowing what he might have been if he had not become a prostitute, hating himself for his own surrender, above all, hating the man who never surrendered.

"Egocentric!" What a superb adjective for an aging trollop who wants to transfer the moral blame to the conspicuous non-trollop!

In the Surkov interview, too, the human image positively leaps from the page. But here it is a different image, for Surkov is a writer of no talent whatever, a dreary, loud-mouthed party drudge, who earns his handsome pay and extensive perquisites by dragging real writers into the party line.

He must, one suspects, hate them all, even supple old Ehrenburg himself. Above all, Surkov hates Pasternak, who has the greatest talent and has not been dragged; and he already fears the dreadful blow that is to come.

Annoying Thought

"They say he may even be nominated for the Nobel Prize!" Surkov burst out. "They say he may even get it!"

"The idea of a Nobel Prize for Pasternak seemed to annoy him deeply," the interviewer, Gerd Ruge, continued drily. "My ears were no more than half a yard from his mouth. But Surkov spoke as though he were addressing a plenary session of his (Writers') union."

Nor can one wonder at Surkov's furious annoyance. For the human spirit is strangely, obstinately difficult to drag; and on top of every other reason that Surkov has for loathing Pasternak, there is the grim, practical reason that Pasternak is the shining, secret hero of nine-tenths of the younger men whom Surkov is charged with keeping in order.

To the literary trollops, in truth, Pasternak's prize must indeed be a bitter personal humiliation. The row over Pasternak proves how right Plato was, when he outlived all poets as dangerous subversives in his design for a totalitarian state.

I know, from watching moments of tragedy, defeat, and despair change and grow into beauty and happiness, that if you truly love, "all things will work together for good." ## Report on Asia

NEW YORK—Famine, unemployment, and forced labor in China are mentioned in a United Nations economic report on Asia. But the report also gives statistics indicating that China, under her totalitarian regime may be progressing faster than India with her mixed socialist-capitalist system.

The all-important fight for the Asian countries is to obtain investment capital and the report asks "whether it is possible for a country whose people are poor to mobilize enough domestic savings without using authority."

"In mainland China's centrally planned economy the state enterprises with their dominating position, which in effect enables them to buy the nation's product cheap, and sell it dear, have apparently lifted the national rate of savings to around 20 per cent," the UN economists report.

In contrast, India is re-investing only about 10 per cent of her national product. The main problem facing mainland China, says the UN report, is the development of heavy industry. This is being vigorously rushed but only "at the expense of the agricultural sector and also by the forced saving of much greater proportion of the increase in production than would normally be possible under other systems."

"The population pressure, as well as the related problem of unemployment and underemployment, is one of the most serious problems facing mainland China," say the UN economists.

The report notes, however, that employment difficulties are not peculiar to China alone, and it says that China has made "significant progress . . . but only at the cost of heavy sacrifices on the part of the industrial worker, and especially of the peasant."

The economists wonder "how long this rate of growth can be sustained."

The report is produced by the UN's Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, and is probably the most detailed economic report on Asia so far produced. Of particular interest is the comparison between the private enterprise economy of Japan, the Indian mixed economy, and the "centrally planned" economy of China.

The Japanese economy is reported as "dynamic" but suffering from a "fundamental imbalance between population and resources," which results in "widespread underemployment" and general instability.

To keep their economy expanding fast enough to employ their people, planners estimate Japan must re-invest 30 per cent of the national product. Exports must be increased at the rate of 10 per cent per year and, to do this, the Japanese are counting on sharply increased sales in Asia.

In the case of India, the report cites both success and difficulty. India has been generally successful in meeting industrial goals and 1956 production was up 33 per cent from 1957. Targets have not been met, however, in food production and in the all-important field of investment. As a result, India's economy faces a crisis but has been aided by loans from the United States totalling $312,000,000. China, incidentally, has long received substantial aid from Russia.

Summing up, the report says that production is rising and superficially, the Asian economy appears satisfactory. Closer study, however, shows "conditions which 'could even be called alarming'—a serious adverse trade balance for example, falling foreign exchange reserves, instability, and a declining share of the world's trade."

The report also says that per capita food production is still less than it was before the Second World War—and it was close to the subsistence level then.

The economists are also concerned about the population "explosion" and they say that by 1980 the population of Asia will equal the present population of the entire world.

Face Lift for Paddington

LONDON—Short takes . . . Paddington, one of London's toughest districts (scene of recent race riots, etc.), is to get a face lift. London County Council will spend $8,000,000 clearing away and rebuilding a 44-acre section of it adjoining Paddington Station.

Three huge blocks of skyscraper flats, each 21 stories high, will dominate the area and modern homes, shops and parks will replace the notorious Victorian slums. One of the main blessings of the development: it will be the end of overcrowding, the population of the area being sliced from 7,790 to 3,860.

Is radio dead? Not in Britain, at any rate. Listener research figures show that over the summer months 20 million adults listened to "something on the radio"—3,500,000 more than view "something on television."

One of the main reasons is that radio in this country has now gone overboard for the one thing that gains practically nothing by TV treatment—music.

Stephen Potter, who'll go down in history as the inventor of "gamesmanship," has a new book out, this time on the topic of "Supermanship."

Stamp Corner: (1) Demands from the public for a stamp commemorating the Comet's trans-Atlantic jet achievements have brought from the post office the answer that this might have been done had they had sufficient warning. It seems to take at least a year, from conception to the finished product, to get a new British stamp into the post offices.

(2) Complaints that the new regional stamps (Wales, Scotland, etc.) carry symbols of the countries concerned and "not their names brought this reply from the post office to do this it would have been necessary to include "United Kingdom of Great Britain and North Ireland"—too much lettering for a standard-size stamp. Also it would spoil this nation's unique record of never having put its name on its stamps.

Bernie Braden in the midst of enacting on TV a 15-minute short story every night for a month (like his Bernie Braden Tells a Story series on Canadian radio) and getting pats on the back for it.

Author Alec ("Island in the Sun") Waugh off on a round-the-world trip by air and it won't cost him a penny. It's a Pan-American Airlines publicity gimmick. In return he has promised that any character in his novels who travels will go by Pan-Am.

Another author, Wolf Mankowitz, is doing so well out of the musical adaptation of his Expresso Bongo that shortly he'll have another one running with it on the West End stage—a musical based on his novel about antique auctions, "Make Me an Offer."

Seven years ago the Royal Commission on betting, lotteries and gaming recommended that betting shops be set up and nothing has been done about it.

Now the 10,000-strong Magistrates Association is urging that legislation be introduced to end the farce of their having to fine people who can legally bet on a race course, by mail and by phone but can't do it elsewhere.

WOMAN SCORES A HIT IN DEBUT AMONG PEERS

LONDON (Reuters)—A woman Tuesday night participated in a House of Lords debate for the first time in its 900-year history—and scored a hit.

The speaker was Baroness Elliott of Harwood, one of four women who last month broke the ancient all-male tradition of the Upper Chamber by taking seats there as life peeresses.

The baroness, widow of former Conservative health minister Walter Elliott, started by reminding her listeners of Matthew Pryor's 257-year-old verse about the fair sex:

"Be to her frailties very kind,
"Be to her faults a little blind."

Passmore Against Merger Proposal

Coun. Leslie Passmore Monday told a Royal Oak public meeting he is "dead against" the amalgamation of Saanich and Victoria.

It was the first time the senior councillor had expressed his views on the amalgamation issue since the merger was favored in a report by Mr. D. J. Deutsch, UBC economist.

He was asked from the floor of the meeting why the city favored amalgamation with Saanich.

TAX RELIEF

"The reason why the city wants to join with Saanich is because it wants some relief from taxation," Mr. Passmore said.

Mr. Passmore said the Deutsch report showed this to be clearly the case.

Earlier, Reeve George Chatterton said control of subdivisions in the urban areas of Saanich would eliminate one of the main advantages of amalgamation with the city.

The reeve and councillors are scheduled to meet Dr. Deutsch tonight to discuss the amalgamation report.

Daimler to Gamble On New Sports Car

LONDON (UPI)—The Daimler Car Company, whose automobiles traditionally have been expensive and ultra-conservative, disclosed today it is gambling $30 million on a "strikingly modern" medium-priced sports car. The new range will have a 2½ liter engine "of very advanced V-8 design" and will go on the market by next fall.

In my opinion this is the fairest way of submitting the bylaw," he said.

Elected Police Board Requested by Saanich

Saanich council is unanimously in favor of police commissioners being elected instead of appointed.

Under the present system, the provincial government and councils each appoint a member. The mayor or reeve is chairman.

The system of appointing commissioners was inaugurated by the government two years ago when it amended the Municipal Act.

Several organizations, including the Junior Chamber of Commerce, have spoken against the present setup, claiming that the old system of electing commissioners was "more democratic."

Council will submit a resolution at the next annual meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities request-

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Best Effect Comes by Grouping

All of us appreciate the mass displays of flowers from spring bulbs we see in parks and large gardens.

Their attraction stems from the quantity of one kind of flower, such as a long border of tulips or a large bed of daffodils.

With lots of space and thousands of bulbs most of us could make a creditable showing, but

Jack to create an attraction with a few dozen bulbs and a plant-filled narrow border is something entirely different.

For this we can borrow an idea from the owner of a small corner store. His stock is as varied as the plants in a small garden, and he carries but a dozen or so of each item.

IN GROUP

To attract the eyes of his customers, he places the entire dozen in a group or stack on the shelves. He could, of course, display the 12 different items in 12 different places in the store, which may be effective if each item were large, but quite ineffective for small stock.

This idea of grouping for effect is one of the basic rules of garden-planting. Three groups of 12 bulbs each have a greater effect on the viewer than 36 bulbs dotted here and there among other plants.

When sufficient bulbs are on hand to make larger groups the best effects are created by drifts. This is accomplished by throwing a few dozen bulbs over the soil and planting them where they fall.

And, remember—use bone-meal when planting, not a complete fertilizer.

Rough Ride Faces Anti-Sprawl Law

Council to 'Water Down' Proposal
Chatterton Tells Royal Oak Meeting

A zoning bylaw to prevent "sprawl development" and to restrict all subdivision development in a certain area in Saanich will be "watered down," Reeve George Chatterton assured a Royal Oak public meeting Tuesday.

New Teacher Negotiation Plan Working

A new procedure for salary negotiations between school boards and teachers in B.C. goes into effect this month.

For the first time and under the new Public Schools Act, expiration dates for negotiation, conciliation and arbitration will be fixed.

In any negotiations, conciliators must be appointed Nov. 1 to 5, and they must begin their work between Nov. 6 and 15. If no agreement is reached by Nov. 15, the issue goes automatically to arbitration.

In previous negotiations between B.C. school boards and teachers, expiration dates were flexible and led to "unwieldiness" in progress of pay discussions.

P. M. Hopkins of Kitimat, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, said present salary demands ranged from "small increases to as much as 20 per cent."

Association officials are disturbed that many salary demands are made on a percentage basis on salaries now paid, which they said had the undesirable effect of resulting in larger gains for senior teachers.

"This makes it difficult to bring beginning salaries to more attractive levels," they said.

School Building At Record Level Says Peterson

The largest school construction program in the history of the province is underway this year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said Monday.

In a radio broadcast, the minister said $122,100,000 had been spent for school building in the past six years, compared to $66,300,000 in the preceding six-year period.

Up to the first of September this year, the school building outlay had reached $15,000,000, and many millions more will be spent before the end of the year," he said.

MAYOR NEXT YEAR

'Dim Eye' For All Tag Days

Mayor Percy Scurrell Tuesday said next year he will oppose all applications for tag days.

"Next year I will turn a very dim eye on them," he said. "I have said before, and I say again, that they are just weakening the Community Chest."

He made the statement when finance committee decided it could not grant permission to the Lions Club for a carnation tag day next May because it should be decided by the 1959 council.

The Lions project would be in support of the Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society low-rent apartment development.

275 ATTEND

More than 275 ratepayers attended the meeting sponsored by the Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association for the purpose of stimulating discussion on current municipal problems.

The association plans further meetings at Gordon Head, Cadboro Bay and the CCF Douglas Street Hall.

The reeve said a bylaw preventing sprawling subdivision developments in Saanich would reduce expenditures for services and costs for school transportation in the rural or semi-rural areas.

"I know restricting subdivisions to certain areas will conflict with the views of some individuals," said the reeve. "But as reeve I must first consider what is good for the whole municipality."

Councillors Leslie Passmore, Stanley Murphy, Charles Nelles and Harold Todd agreed that some building restrictions would have to be imposed to reduce costs of services.

100-MPH Chase Described To City Forgery Trial Jury

A 100-mile-an-hour dash through the streets of Victoria was described in Criminal Assize Court, Monday, during the trial of William Black, 32, of Vancouver, charged with forging and cashing income tax rebate cheques in Victoria.

The chase came when bank manager Melville Genge, 1529 Monterey, became suspicious after a man cashed a cheque in his bank.

He jumped into his car and chased the man at speeds from 95 to 100 miles an hour before losing him at the Douglas Street roundabout.

TAX REBATE

A Saanich bank employee told a similar story of chasing a man who tried to cash a forged cheque.

A teller in the bank said the man presented an income tax rebate cheque for $263.

"I referred him to the manager," said Miss Margaret Hanely, 3381 Savannah, "and he went out to a car saying he would get it. But as soon as he got outside he began to run and the bank staff ran after him."

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said first of the forged cheques was cashed at a city bank July 24, with similar ones turning up a few hours later at "virtually all banks in the city".

Educational Offer Made To RCN Men

Enlisted men in the Royal Canadian Navy will get an added chance to acquire education to qualify as officer candidates, it has been announced at naval headquarters.

HMCS Naden shore establishment at Esquimalt will be the centre of a new course in which men under 24 years of age may achieve junior matriculation standing.

Previously, only senior matriculation courses were offered those who had passed junior matric exams.

The new offer is part of a broad revision in the navy's education programs, designed to meet the needs of modern ships and equipment.

Officer candidates will be selected carefully for the junior matriculation training. Successful students may qualify for the Venture program, the College Militaire de St. Jean and university.

Another academic course will prepare candidates to write grade 13 examinations, and on completing this course candidates may elect for university or Canadian services college training.

In addition, provincial education departments will co-operate with the navy adult program to offer correspondence and evening courses in a wide range of academic, technical and vocational subjects.

'Y' Leaders Rally

Some 60 YMCA instructors from mainland and Vancouver Island Ys will be in Victoria Saturday for a two-day leaders' rally.

To be held at the Victoria club, the rally will include gymnastic and teaching contests and discussion groups.

'Dollar-A-Citizen' Drive

Community Chest officials, worried that the $300,000 is still $75,000 short only 10 days from the drive deadline, today asked every Greater Victoria citizen to give another dollar.

Children, too, are asked to squeeze a dollar from their allowances in what represents the Chest campaign committee's last-ditch attempt to hit the highest-ever target.

The money can be dropped in at any bank, or at Eaton's, Woodward's and Hudson's Bay stores. Receipts will be given if required.

The "dollar blitz" begins immediately and has no expiry date.

Earlier, Chest manager Justin Harbord told his committee he felt "we have missed somewhere" in the conduct of the campaign.

"We haven't done the job we should have done," he said.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE WORMS

1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms or Round-Worms... say parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of these ugly pests, they must be killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. And clinical tests have proved that JAYNE'S Liquid Vermifuge kills both Pin-Worms and Round-Worms quickly and easily. Then they are expelled from the system in a normal manner and you are free of them.

JAYNE'S Liquid Vermifuge has a pleasant, fruity taste. Children love it—take it without fuss or fret. Remember, Pin-Worms and Round-Worms are highly contagious and can spread through the whole family.

So, at the first sign of worms, be sure to ask your druggist for JAYNE'S Liquid Vermifuge.

Compulsory Insurance for Hunters Urged

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Should hunters be forced to carry liability insurance? If they were would it lessen the toll in the woods? Or would they still march into the forests, pulling the trigger at will and creating, or becoming, another vital statistic?

merce and some senior Chamber members feel that compulsory hunting insurance might reduce the toll of fatalities. Other senior Chamber members feel such insurance would result in no recession in burial traffic. This group contends that a certain group of "sportsmen" would be more trigger-happy than ever if they went after game with the knowledge that no matter who fell before their careless bullets, they were protected by insurance. Jim Murray, of the Chamber's public affairs group, believes all hunters should be tested before receiving a hunting licence.

"Anyone afflicted with color-blindness or deafness can go hunting. All he needs is money for a gun and shells. But if the same man wants to buy a car, he must take a test before he can drive it," Mr. Murray says.

F. L. Shaw supports compulsory insurance "in view of the recklessness and indifference of hunters." But the group tabled a Jaycee motion asking for support until the matter can be investigated.

Animal lovers and sportsmen will doubtless be at each other's throats over any proposal such as compulsory insurance. Protect-the-game group will advocate it because it will be another step in leaving wildlife untouched. Sportsmen will protest that it adds another burden to those seeking outdoor recreation.

"Long ago the government moved to prevent the complete destruction of wildlife by determining that certain game can be shot only in season. But nobody has moved to preserve the hunter. It's time they did."

Horticulturists will favor the suggestion by parks board chief Herb Warren that city parking lots are "too drab." He suggests that trees and shrubs would brighten them. Chamber officials believe he has a good point. They plan to ask him for more details. All of which means that you may have to be careful when you park your limousine. There may be a hydrangea lurking nearby.

Eric Mallett and Ken Murphy have been re-elected chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the chamber's public affairs group.

Elected to the executive were F. L. Shaw, Aubrey Kent, Charles Nelles and Jack Houdez.

Ken's Been Busy

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI)—Back in the days when Joe Louis was enlisting various pugilists in his "bum of the month club" the dark destroyer was offered a bout with a gladiator named Mello Bettina.

Mello, recognized in New York State as the light-heavyweight champion of the world, was a southpaw. This, in ordinary language, means—he was left-handed.

And Louis had never engaged in hostilities with someone who took a menacing stance from this side of the torso.

"I will go down to the gym and work out with a southpaw," Louis said. "Then I will let you know."

Joe wasn't gone long. And his reply was emphatic.

"I," he asserted firmly, "don't want absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with no southpaws. Bettina is out."

The Brown Bomber's reaction is typical of those in the boxing trade. Managers shy away from left-handers and so do opponents.

"If he's your boy," explained one pilot, "nobody wants to fight him. If he's an opponent, he's tough to fight and usually he'll make your boy look bad even if you win."

The trouble with most of them," he added, "is that they think left-handed, too."

This seems like a bad rap to hang on a fellow simply because he downs his vegetables with his left hand or jabs with his right. You might think, to listen to the boxing folks, that southpaws were all left-handed shortstops.

But one lad who has survived this attitude remarkably is Kenny Lane, the Muskogean, Mich., lightweight who tackles Lahouari Godih, the alphabet soup Algerian from Paris, in Friday night's televised fight from Syracuse.

Lane has been very busy with a total of 59 fights, and very successful with 53 victories over that stretch.

But the "I told you so" guys of boxing will point out that Lane never has won the lightweight title.

In rebuttal, you can say "almost." He boxed lightweight champion Joe Brown last July and it was so close that Brown hasn't been up on a soapbox demanding that Lane fight him again.

ANCIENT PREJUDICE
True, there have been only nine left-handed champions in the whole history of boxing. These were Bettina, middleweights Lou Brouillard, Tiger Flowers, Al McCoy and Johnny Wilson; welterweight Young Corbett III; bantamweight Jimmy Carruthers; featherweight Freddie Miller and flyweight Jackie Paterson.

But the truth is that most managers, when they see a likely prospect who is left-handed, put him in the gym and convert him into a right-hander. Most of the good left-handers you see are natural left-handers.

Dave Charnley, the British Empire lightweight champion, is a southpaw and, along with Lane, may help to give the left-handers a new standing. It is to be doubted, however, because the prejudice is too ancient. But one thing is sure: Lane is a southpaw who will give you a good fight.

Stevenson's Pair Spark Maroon Win
Harvey Stevenson fired both goals Wednesday evening at Memorial Arena as Maroons defeated Capitals, 2-1, in the bantam division of the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association. The lone Capital tally was scored by Barry Dennis.

In a morning game, in the same division, Royals defeated Senators, 3-1, on goals by Peter Fitterer, Bill Knazack and Brian Chamberlain. Mike McAvoy fired Senators' answering goal.

TWO CANADIAN CITIES INCLUDED IN PRO TOUR
DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association announced Monday a 1959 spring and summer tour with prizes totalling more than $700,000. Montreal and Toronto are among the cities on the tour circuit.

Golfers will hit the spring-summer circuit at the Greensboro Open Invitational at Greensboro, N.C., April 9-12, and close with the Kansas City Open, Sept. 4-7. In all there will be 18 PGA co-sponsored tournaments and 10 other events.

The PGA championship is set for July 29-Aug. 2 in Minneapolis. The National Open championship will be June 11-13 at Mamaroneck, N.Y.

SOVIET TURF TEAM

Keeping close watch on Garnir, the horse he will ride in next Tuesday's $100,000 Washington, D.C., International, is Russian jockey Nikolai Nasimov, 30. Other Soviet entry in rich race is Zaryad, which will be piloted by 20-year-old Viktor Kovalev. Russians put horses through workout at Laurel track Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto.)

VENEZUELAN ENTRY

Escribeno Joins Field

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Escribeno, four-year-old Venezuelan colt and winner of the Simon Bolivar Stakes, became a surprise entry Tuesday in the $100,000 Washington, D.C., International to be run Nov. 23. This increased the field to 10 starters.

Venezuela won the International two years ago with El Chama, but no representative was expected in this year's event due to internal troubles in the South American country.

The Argentine-bred Escribeno last raced Oct. 26, winning first money of about $50,000 in the Simon Bolivar Stakes, a run of about a mile and a quarter.

Meanwhile the Argentinian entry, Revoque, arrived at Laurel after a three-day trip from South America. This leaves only Escribeno, the Irish horse Ballymoss and Tharp and the German colt Orsini to check in. The Irish and German horses are scheduled to arrive late Thursday aboard the same plane from London.

The two Russian horses, Zaryad and Garnir made their first appearance before the public Tuesday. They came out, unannounced, on the backstretch, and walked and jogged once around the mile track.

When the track announcer called attention to their presence, the crowd of 13,000 applauded politely.

The two riders, Nikolai Nasimov up on Garnir, and Viktor Kovalev astride Zaryad, were dressed in full riding silks. Nasimov wore solid light blue and Kovalev had on royal blue. Both wore matching caps.

Hawks Add More Coal Under Burning Coach

(From CP and UPI Reports)

Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins' coach, has roared a rebuttal to New York Ranger coach Phil Watson's criticism of referees in the National Hockey League.

"Watson's punchy," shouted Schmidt.

"He burns me up," the Boston coach said. "He's not winning and he's making excuses."

Watson levelled a blast at the referee in New York Tuesday, charging that the Bruins have deserved more penalties and that the officials have shown favoritism.

The Ranger mentor was quoted as saying: "Even Milt Schmidt agrees they (the Bruins) deserve a few more penalties. What's going on? The league's really trying to gang up on us—the refs, the draft and the schedule."

"I've never made a quote like that and I never would," Schmidt said. "I wish he'd stick to making his own quotes and stop dragging my name into his quotes. He should concentrate on minding his own business and worrying about his own team."

The Rangers are leading the league in penalties, with the Bruins second.

RANGERS CLIPPED
Fiery Phil Tuesday night watched his Rangers suffer another setback. Chicago Black Hawks, sparked by the line of Ed Litzenberger, Ted Sloan and Ted Lindsay, thumped New York 4-2.

The line figured in all four Chicago goals. Lindsay scored one and helped on the other three while Litz and Sloan each scored once and assisted twice.

Camille Henry and Dean Prentice scored for New York.

ARGOS MONEY AHEAD?

Flops on Field But Not at Gate

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts were a flop on the scoreboard in the Big Four Football Union this year, but they were no slow-pokes at the box office. They'll probably end the 14-game schedule with money in the bank, up to $30,000.

This is the only cheerful note facing executives as they conduct the postmortem for the cellar-dwelling Argos. The puzzler, following Argonauts' humiliating 44-7 loss to Montreal Alouettes last Saturday, concerns the status of coach Hamp Pool.

Argonauts, along with many other pro clubs, don't issue financial statements for public consumption but unofficial crowd figures for the team's seven home games show 149,593 persons watched the Argos stumble to their third straight last-place finish. That's an average of 21,370 a game, compared with last year's average of 17,395.

Nothing will be known officially about Pool until the club's management committee of seven men meets after Argonauts' final game against the Alts at Montreal Saturday. General manager Lew Hayman is mum on the question.

"I said in the middle of the season that question would not be considered until the end of our season. The season ends Saturday in Montreal. Then the management committee will have a meeting and decide what we'll do about 1959."

Fightin' Grandpappy Sticks to His Tavern
SEATTLE (AP)—The comeback of Harry (Kid) Matthews has been knocked out by a left hook to the wallet and the grandpa kid said Tuesday he will remain an ex-heavyweight and active tavern keeper.

Matthews said he was prompted to announce comeback plans last week when offered a sizeable chunk of cash to meet Ingemar Johansson of Sweden in an exhibition bout here this month.

"If I had done well against Johansson," said Matthews, "I planned to go on with a comeback. I'm not broke and I have a good business—I'm not going to abandon it for a long and costly training program."

Matthews, twice a grandfather at 35, had said he believed he could whip most of the present crop of heavyweights. He thought the purse for the Johansson show would underwrite his training, but said the final offer was smaller than expected.

Champion Favored In Non-Title Bout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Lightweight boxing champion Joe Brown, unbeaten in his last 20 fights, was a 13-to-5 favorite to add Johnny Busso of New York to his list of victims in a non-title fight tonight.

Montreal Plans 10 Skating Rinks

MONTREAL (CP)—The city parks department plans to build about 10 covered artificial ice-skating rinks if the first one now being designed proves successful, parks director Claude Robillard said Tuesday.

Black Hawk, handled by Jim Elder, was second in 39.5; Beau Blue, with Tom Gayford in the saddle, finished third in 43.9, and John Peel, under Jim Elder, was fourth in 44 flat.

COUGARS FACE ...

Luce Still Same Pirate

Big Luce is on deck tonight. And it seems apparent that Lucien Dechene hasn't changed much. Perhaps a little wiser and a little rounder than he was a few years ago when New Westminster was his port of call during the hockey season.

They still remember and adore big Luce over in the Royal City. Memorial Arena regulars here haven't forgotten him either. The rotund goalkeeper, now with Saskatoon Quakers, has been the man most responsible for a flock of Victoria Cougar defeats.

Lucien Dechene, 33, now, after spending 10 years—his entire pro career—in the Western Hockey (nee Pacific Coast) League, some are apt to suggest he is "over the hill."

Don't suggest it too loud, partner, or somebody may haul out the record book.

... OLD FOE TONIGHT

Seasons' records suggest Dechene hasn't lost any of his skills. League president Al Leader's averages show that Monsieur Dechene is still the same old puck pirate. His glossy goals-against average of 2.57 is second only to the one owned by Edmonton's Denny Riggin.

And there you have a glowing reason why Quakers are running second to Edmonton Flyers in the WHL's Prairie Division. Quakers are only two points behind Edmonton but have three games in hand.

Tonight, Dechene and his Saskatoon chums hope to pick up those two points when they meet the Cougars at Memorial Arena.

"Is there a better way to start our first coast trip?" asks Lucien.

It's Faster Company, But Same Old Peacosh

For most Western Hockey League teams, today's bad news concerns Vancouver's Walt Peacosh.

Peacosh, it seems, hasn't forgotten how to score goals.

The rookie Vancouver winger was quite a goal-scorer in his junior days with Flin Flon Bombers. Walt finished his junior career with two successive 50-goal seasons and he kept up his prolific production when he stepped up in rank to Penticton V's of the Okanagan Senior League.

Now he's a pro and he's still producing.

THREE TIMES
Peacosh flicked in three goals, including the winner, as Vancouver Canucks jumped into second place in the WHL's Coast Division with 43 victory Tuesday night over Calgary Stampeders of the Prairie Division.

Edmonton Flyers, leaders of the Prairie Division, dropped a 6-4 decision to Winnipeg Warriors, but the game had no effect on the Prairie standings.

Spokane plays host to New Westminster, Victoria meets Saskatoon on the Cougars' ice, and Vancouver visits Edmonton tonight.

Peacosh scored his goals all on assists from Phil Maloney, on his first turn on the ice in each period.

His first goal came at 45 seconds of the first period, his second at 36 seconds of the second and his third at 1:07 of the final.

Dan Belisle tallied the fourth Vancouver goal at 13:20 of the second.

Chuck Blair, Fred Hucul and Eddie Dorohoy netted the Calgary counters, Dorohoy's goal coming with 75 seconds remaining.

PULL GOALIE
Stampeders pulled goalie Roy Edwards with a minute remaining but it didn't help.

At Winnipeg, Warriors scored two goals within 24 seconds in the third period to upset the Edmonton crew in a wide-open game.

Warrior winger Pete Kapusta counted his second goal of the game at 16:26 in the last period to break a 4-4 tie. Defenceman Bob Chrystal connected for his second of the night at 16:50 to clinch the win.

The victory was not enough to raise the Warriors out of last place in the Prairie Division.

Defenceman Bill Folk and centre Barry Ross scored the other Winnipeg goals. Defenceman Dave Amadio and forward Gene Achymichuk both counted twice for Edmonton.

Time Tells Tale in Trial
NEW YORK (AP)—Hugh Wiley of the United States International team captured the West Point challenge jumping trophy Tuesday as the National Horse Show opened at Madison Square Garden.

Wiley gave his grey gelding, Master William, a faultless ride over the eight obstacles and was caught in 38.9 seconds for his effort.

As it turned out, time was the important factor because three other entries—all from Canada—went clear.

Black Hawk, handled by Jim Elder, was second in 39.5; Beau Blue, with Tom Gayford in the saddle, finished third in 43.9, and John Peel, under Jim Elder, was fourth in 44 flat.

GIANTS KNOW NOW
BALTIMORE (AP)—Johnny Unitas, free-flying quarterback who has sparked Baltimore Colts to six straight victories, will be out of action for three to four weeks.

The Colts admitted Tuesday that Unitas, injured Sunday against Green Bay, has several fractured ribs and air in the chest cavity. They had previously said he probably would not miss a game—that he was only bruised.

This blew apart the game.

INTERCOLLEGIATE UNION LOSES BRANDON COLLEGE

SASKATOON (CP)—Brandon College has withdrawn from the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union for 1958-59, a spokesman for the men's athletic board at the University of Saskatchewan said today.

The move leaves the Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia in the union.

No reasons were given for Brandon's decision.

Lions Claim Rumors False

MONTREAL (CP)—Any decision on whether coach Doug "Peahead" Walker of Montreal Alouettes football club will be with the team next season will have to wait until this one is finished, says general manager Gorman Kennedy.

Kennedy was commenting on a story by the Montreal Star Tuesday that Walker may be in his last year with the Alts.

A Day to Remember And One to Forget

HOCKEY TRAIL

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Tuesday was a day of mishap and irony for 23-year-old Robert Corlie, leading apprentice and second-ranking rider of the Garden State Park meet.

The young rider was tossed from Gene Lott's Busher's Bean in mid-stretch in the first race and was shaken up. The horse broke both forelegs and was humanely destroyed.

Corlie passed up the second race but came back to win the third race aboard Major Watson. A jinx still hovered over the youngster as a double claim of foul was lodged against him. It was not allowed.

In the fourth race Corlie was tossed from Shannondale shortly after the break when pinched by Gal Rouge and Ocean Blue. He suffered a possible fracture of the left leg.

COLT QUARTERBACK HURT

Colt officials were playing as they prepared to meet New York Giants, Sunday. The Giants last weekend tripped up previously unbeaten Cleveland, 21-17.

"We are sorry the news broke today on Unitas," said coach Webb Ewbank. "We kept quiet and asked the team physician to do the same because we wanted the Giants to get ready for John all week and then spring George (Shaw) on offense."

Ironically, it was an injury to Shaw two years ago that gave Unitas his chance at quarterback—and he performed so well that Shaw has ridden the bench most of the time since.

Shaw was a standout Sunday after going in for Unitas in the second quarter, with the Colts leading Packers 14-0. He engineered six more touchdowns on 10 pass completions in 13 tries and some deceptive signalling that kept the Packers offbase.

MRS. CLAIRE LOVETT
... Vancouver threat

Classy Shuttle Field

A tournament of champions is in the offing on the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club courts when the third annual Victoria Racquets Club Invitational badminton tournament is staged Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Topping the list of expected entries is colorful Dave McGarratt, of Vancouver, current men's Canadian singles champion and defending invitational titlist.

Defending women's singles crown will be Victoria's Maureen Bray, who also holds the provincial crown.

FORMER CHAMPS

Strong out-of-town entries should make the event an outstanding one with the entry of Bert Fergus, of Vancouver, former Canadian doubles champ; Claire Lovett, Vancouver, former Canadian women's singles champion, and Nick Johnston of Seattle.

Another former Canadian titlist from Vancouver attending the meet will be Mrs. Jean Bardsley, along with Bill Barney, of UBC, one of the rising young stars of the game from eastern Canada.

Play will start Friday at 7:30 p.m. and continue Saturday and Sunday at 9 a.m., with finals in all events expected to start Sunday noon.

Entries will be accepted until noon Friday.

TWO GAMES

Rugby Reps To Tackle Mainlanders

Two representative teams of the Victoria Rugby Union have been chosen for action on two fronts.

Both will play representative teams from Vancouver. The "Bs" meet UBC Thunderbirds Saturday at Macdonald Park, and the second game will be played Tuesday, also at Macdonald Park between the "A" team and the Vancouver Reps. Both games start at 2:30 p.m.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Often the results of a long-planned and extensive hunting trip fall far below expectations.

But there were no disappointments this year for George Robinson and his son, Doug, who arrived back in Victoria this week with a pair of mountain caribou trophies.

"That's one trip I'll never forget," says Doug about the jaunt that used up nine days from the time they parked their car to climb into saddles 125 miles north of Fort St. John until they switched on the ignition again.

It took two days' packing each way between their base camp at the headwaters of the Bucking Horse River and the car. Four days were occupied by hunting and a Sunday was spent in camp.

High and wide open, the territory contained a wealth of wildlife, and the Robinsons saw nine bull moose, along with other game. Although outfitter Leo Rutledge, who has been at his trade for 30 years, estimated two of the bulls carried antlers spreading 55 to 60 inches, they didn't pop a cartridge at the biggest of all deer.

It was caribou they were after, intent on satisfying an appetite that had only been whetted when they spotted just half a dozen of the stocky nomads, and no mature bulls, on a trip above Anahim Lake in the Chilcotin country last year.

Unlike the caribou of the arctic tundras, which is better known because of its vast numbers and its storied migrations across the barren lands of the far north, the mountain caribou prefers to wander in the hills.

Roams Restlessly on Mountain Tops

Until winter snows drive him down into timber, he roams restlessly on alpine plateaus atop the mountains. And since winds habitually sweep across northern B.C. hills at 50 and 60 miles per hour in October and November, it's cool work when you're in his territory. It takes a lot of leg work to get up to his feeding grounds and he's a here-today-gone-tomorrow animal.

Mountain caribou still can't be classed as plentiful, but they are making a great comeback and have increased considerably in the past few years.

On their first day of hunting, the Robinsons searched a hill where Rutledge had located approximately 60 caribou with his 20-power spotting telescope the previous evening. They saw several animals—all on another hill several miles away and too distant to hunt successfully before dark.

They returned to the same mountain the second day and the caribou were back. Several were observed through binoculars and when they saw a big bull crossing the skyline, they went up after him.

The herd of six had moved out of sight by the time they finished their climb, but while they were resting aching leg muscles, a cow walked back over the crest. A few minutes later a small bull followed and then a high-antlered bull stepped over the top.

George, using a .308 lever-action Savage with four-power scope, dropped the big fellow. A couple of minutes later, Doug sighted the scope atop his bolt-action .308 Husqvarna on a smaller bull and the caribou quest was over.

Leo Has No Unemployment Problems

One day was spent resting, then Doug was out after stone sheep, which are usually hunted two days further east along the trail, near the Profit River. He missed a shot at a fair-sized ram, but downed a smaller ram a few minutes later to just about complete his collection of B.C. game trophies. In previous seasons he has bagged sheep, moose, elk, black and grizzly bear, mountain goat, lynx and cougar. In all, the Victorians saw 80 or 90 caribou, 21 sheep—in 90 minutes of hunting—and several moose.

On the last day, Doug had the rare opportunity of watching a pair of bull moose try to demolish each other. "There were four bulls browsing and occasionally two of them would square off and fight for a few minutes," he recalls. "They clashed several times and although it may not have been a full-scale, drag-em-out battle, it was some sight. Even from half a mile, the crashing of antlers made quite a noise. That was really something to see."

One of the things that amazed the hunters was Rutledge's ability to spot game. "He could pick out sheep five and six miles away," says Doug. "Even through his spotting scope, they just looked like white blobs to me."

Rutledge, who guides almost exclusively for parties of U.S. hunters, usually books only three parties each year—two for 30-day trips into the Profit River section, where most of the record stone sheep trophies are taken.

And if you are interested in a trip up his way, try some other outfitter. Rutledge has no unemployment problem in hunting seasons. He's booked up for several years.

Orioles Alter Front Office

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lee Macphail will take over the general manager's job of Baltimore Orioles' Paul Richards, it was announced today. Richards will devote full time to managing the baseball team on the field.

The announcement by James Keely, Jr., Oriole president, confirmed recent reports that the 41-year-old Macphail will give up the position of director of player personnel for New York Yankees to come to Baltimore.

Lee, son of Larry Macphail, formerly an owner of the Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, will take over the end of this month in time for the winter meeting of baseball in Washington Dec. 1.

Richards has been designated both general and field manager since he was hired by the Orioles from Chicago White Sox in 1955.

Keely said Macphail "will have the authority to approve and conclude all major deals and will confer with manager Richards on any contemplated transfers of player personnel."

Keely said Richards is in full accord with the change. He said the selection of Macphail was on the personal recommendation of Richards and his "enthusiasm for the move is demonstrated by the fact that he has voluntarily relinquished the position of general manager."

Minors Seeking Health Formula

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Franchise shifts, league mergers and other changes affecting the entire minor league baseball structure may result from a special meeting of seven high classification circuits which opened today.

Representatives of 54 teams will sit in on the two-day sessions.

The unprecedented gathering was called by President George Trautman of the national association at the request of Bill Dewitt, baseball co-ordinator and administrator of the $500,000 major league fund.

SUMMER SURVEY

Dewitt will report on his findings following a summer-long survey of the minor league situation.

The seven leagues involved are the Pacific Coast, American Association, International,

Baseball Meeting Slated Nov. 13

Annual general meeting of the Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association has been scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 13.

All sponsors of senior and Connie Mack League teams, executive members of affiliated leagues, members of VDABA committees and all others interested in amateur baseball are invited to attend the session at the Naval Veterans' lower hall, Broad Street.

Included on the agenda for the meeting, which gets under way at 8 p.m., will be the reading of reports on 1958 activities and election of officers.

Texas, South Atlantic and Western.

Although no legislative action is expected here, it is Dewitt's belief that several franchise shifts and possibly a league merger may develop after the draft meetings in Washington next month.

Dewitt said he was not at liberty to reveal what clubs were seeking shifts or which leagues were considering consolidation.

It is no secret, though, that the St. Louis Cardinals do not intend to operate their Houston farm unless the Texas League club is promoted to the American Association in place of the Louisville club, which recently declared it could not operate next year unless its finances were underwritten by a major league club.

MAY MOVE FRANCHISE

The American Association may be faced with another problem if Milwaukee makes good its threat to attempt to move its Wichita franchise to Jacksonville, now in the Sally League.

One of the leagues anxious to consolidate is the Western, which has a transportation problem resulting from the more than 1,000-mile spread between Albuquerque and Sioux City.

Should the Texas League lose Houston, there is a possibility the circuit may attempt to draft either Albuquerque or Amarillo from the Western.

In the Beginning, Just Friends

By NORMAN BARRYMAINE
(Copyright by Peter Davies Ltd.)

CHAPTER 9

In the beginning there was certainly no thought of any deeper emotion than friendship between Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend. Margaret always called him "Peter"—and that was how he was addressed by the King and Queen. But Townsend always addressed her as "Ma'am." If Margaret was the Princess, Townsend was still just as much the royal servant. He never forgot his role in those days.

Then, as now, Princess Margaret was too well trained not to realize what harm lack of dignity can do a royal house. She may still leave a gathering, as she has done, where an overly friendly guest addresses her as "Margaret." As far as the use of her own Christian name is concerned, the Princess observes the long-standing royal rule.

In public—and this means when one other persons is present—only royal relations call her "Margaret." She permits a few of her most intimate women friends to use her Christian name when they are alone together. At all other times they, like her nonroyal relatives, address her as "Ma'am."

Princess Margaret has had her name linked with many alleged suitors. Perhaps the favorite of all speculations was the Earl of Dalkeith, who had been a friend of Margaret's since the days when he was a lanky boy with red hair and freckles.

While she was learning to drink pink champagne, John Dalkeith was studying agricultural productivity. While she was out in nearly strapless evening dresses, he was tramping farms in shapeless tweeds.

Parents' Choice

At the time of the King's death he was frequently in the Princess' company. I think that both the King and Queen always thought (at least hoped) that their daughter would marry Johnnie. There was ample evidence at the time that Dalkeith was looked upon with great favor by all the Royal Family.

Dalkeith and the Princess had many interests in common. The Princess shares his passion for horses—riding is the one form of outdoor exercise she really enjoys. The only thing wrong with this alleged romance was that though fond of each other, they were not in love. Margaret was already in love with Peter Townsend.

In January, 1953—at the time Townsend's decree was being made absolute—Dalkeith married in St. Giles Cathedral, Edinburgh. Jane McNeill, a well-known fashion model, whose father was a prosperous Hong Kong Queen's Counsel.

Princess Margaret was present at the wedding. Because she showed a little emotion, some columnists hinted that it was a case of unrequited love. Another piece of nonsense. She was probably thinking: Could her own love have a happy ending?

No one spared a thought for the long-eyelashed, slim group captain, who, in fact, spent more time with the Princess than all those young escorts put together. If the list of escorts was large it was because Margaret could not have an evening alone with a young man. He must invite at least six other acceptable people. Nor could the party go to any cheap and pleasant restaurant.

The Eligibles

So the blunt truth is that although she was a gay party-goer during her teens and early twenties, afterwards she was often desperately lonely in the cavernous rooms of Buckingham Palace. It was then that the debonair Peter Townsend came prominently into the picture. And the King and the Queen encouraged him to "take care" of their daughter.

There are only two bachelors left among the Princess' friends—Mr. Billy Wallace—now known as "Old Faithful"—and that brilliant Anglican priest, the Reverend Simon Phipps, cousin of Joyce Grenfell, the actress, whose grandmother was an Astor.

It has been said that Billy Wallace has long been under Margaret's spell and might even still marry her. Nothing, of course, can be ruled out. The Princess' choice is narrowing and she is restricted in her opportunities to meet eligible men.

This brings us to Simon Phipps, now a Chaplain to Trinity College, Cambridge. Margaret and the Queen Mother often lunch with him in his chintz-decorated chambers in Great Court, Cambridge. They are very happy in his company.

It is within my knowledge that he exerted more influence on the Princess in reaching her decision not to marry Peter Townsend than did the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Fisher.

When Princess Margaret celebrated her 21st birthday at Balmoral in August 1951, Peter was on duty as Equerry-in-Waiting. The year previous he had been appointed Deputy Master of the Household. By now he was a firm favorite with her. On the afternoon of her birthday the King, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, Billy Wallace, and the Earl of Dalkeith, had gone off shooting on the moors.

Alone With Ladies

The Queen, with Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret and three ladies-in-waiting, had a picnic on the heathered hills on Stauntyrloch, above Crathie. One man was left with the royal ladies: Peter Townsend.

Usually Townsend went to Balmoral for his "holiday" tour of duty and when it was over he nearly always stayed on at the invitation of the King and the Queen.

A friend gave this description of Peter's position in the Balmoral family circle: "We motored over for dinner at 7.30. At least three footmen came out of the front door to open the doors of the motor cars. Peter and another member of the court were waiting at the entrance. He showed us into where everybody else was in the drawing room, having a drink.

On the Dot

"There were 18 or 20 guests to be introduced. On the table was a guest plan. Peter was responsible for working it out with the King and the Queen. Peter was also responsible for seeing that everybody knew where to sit at dinner.

"Thinking is an enormously important element in royal life. Everything has to be arranged on the dot. Peter got us down a long corridor and into the dining room. The King sat in the middle of the table and the Queen opposite. The conversation followed the King. Peter sat in the least important place.

"After dinner Peter showed people into the cinema. There was no seating arrangement, but he hovered around until everybody was seated before he sat down himself.

"The film show over, the guests and neighbors left, but Princess Margaret and the intimate clique began playing guessing games, charades or canasta. The royal family adore games. Peter was always on hand to make a fourth."

King George VI dies in his sleep and his passing leads to an even closer relationship between Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend. Read instalment 10 Thursday.

C of C Backs Merger Forum

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will urge its members to attend the forum on the proposed amalgamation of Victoria and Saanich but they won't take a stand on the issue.

Public affairs group of the Chamber Monday vetoed a suggestion by chairman Eric Mallett that Chamber directors be asked to favor amalgamation.

Public affairs members said such a stand would lack value and doubted that members would be unanimous in backing the proposal.

"The matter is too controversial," said Jack House.

Instead the group decided to urge all Chamber members to familiarize themselves with the amalgamation report of Dr. J. J. Deutsch and to form two camps—for and against amalgamation—to activate interest in the question.

The group named vice-chairman Ken Murphy to act with a three-man Junior Chamber committee, which is sponsoring the forum at Central Junior High School auditorium Nov. 25. The Joyce committee is composed of Eric Charman, George Geddes and Al Buchan.

Originally the senior Chamber planned a forum Nov. 27. It withdrew its plans to co-sponsor the project with the Community Planning Association of Victoria in favor of supporting the Joyce forum scheduled two days earlier.

POWELL RIVER WINS DAMAGES FOR LOST TUG

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada, in a judgment made public Tuesday, confirmed an award of $33,106 and interest to the Powell River Company Ltd., of Powell River, B.C., for loss of a tugboat.

The tugboat, Teeshoe, built in Vancouver in 1924, was lost Dec. 4, 1954.

The Powell River Company was awarded $33,106 and interest in a judgment of the admiralty district of British Columbia, which found that the loss of the tugboat was due to the negligent operation of the steamship Giovanni Amendola. The owners of the steamship subsequently brought an appeal against the amount of damages awarded.

In the Exchequer Court judgment, Justice J. C. A. Cameron dismissed the appeal with costs.

WHY SUBSIDIZE TEACHERS, CLUBS?

'They Must Pay Own Way'

City finance committee Tuesday recommended that no tax exemptions be allowed on private school teacherages or private clubs.

The committee recommended rejections of applications for tax exemptions made by St. Louis College and the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said he could not see why living quarters of private school teachers should be exempted from taxation when public school teachers and all householders had to pay property tax.

Ald. Arthur Dowell pointed out that parsonages and caretakers' living quarters in churches are taxed.

YEAR-TO-YEAR

Committee was informed that several teacherages were exempted from taxation this year, but Mayor Percy Scurrell said the exemptions can only be made on a year-to-year basis and council could refuse the exemptions next year.

Dealing with the tennis club's application, the mayor said:

"It isn't fair to place the burden on the householder and the business property, which is what happens when you exempt clubs. We just can't afford it and I don't think it's right."

"If anyone wants a private club to play some game, they should pay their own way instead of being subsidized by the city," he said.

POPE PLEDGES PEACE CAUSE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John XXIII pledged today to work for a just and brotherly peace and true freedom among peoples during his reign.

The Pontiff was addressing representatives of 54 countries and five international organizations in the Vatican. They were the official foreign representatives at his coronation.

The Pope recalled that his predecessor, Pius XII, had devoted his pontificate to peace in the world. He said he would follow his example.

'Flower Park' Plan Approved in Saanich

Start Next Year At Mayfair Site

A large and colorful rhododendron and azalea park, the first of its kind in Canada, will be started in Saanich next year.

Saanich parks committee Tuesday approved a proposal to set aside Mayfair Park for development into a rhododendron park.

The proposal was made by a Victoria Arboretum Society delegation consisting of Dr. Adam Szczawinski, curator of botany, Provincial Museum, Dr. Stewart Holland and J. E. Underhill.

Parks committee chairman Charles Nelles said the 8½ acre park will also include a playlot, but the main portion will be reserved for the showy ornamental shrubs.

Playfair Park is situated in the Tattersall area east of Quadra Street.

Dr. Szczawinski said the society would co-operate with the municipality in developing the park.

PLANT 6,000
"We will provide rhododendrons which Victoria gardeners never knew existed," he said. "We plan to plant at least 6,000 rhododendrons representing some 600 species collected from all parts of the world."

The shrubs, he said, would be provided by the society, various plant collectors and organizations.

The park, he added, would mark the first step towards establishing a national arboretum in Saanich.

It was the society's hope, he said, that an arboretum can eventually be established in the Beaver-Elk Lake area with the federal and provincial governments co-operating in its development.

The Playfair Park, he said, would become a show piece.

3-Month Term For Easterner On Fraud Counts

Ex-Hamiltonian John C. Byrne was sentenced in city police court today to three months concurrent on each of eight false pretences and fraud charges to which he pleaded guilty.

Six charges were for worthless cheques totalling $58 written between Oct. 17 and 23 and cashed by Gladwell Motors Ltd., where Byrne had been employed for about a month.

Another was for a $30 cheque cashed at the Strathcona Hotel, and the fraud charge was for food and lodgings of a value of about $100 at the same hotel.

"I told the officers when I turned myself in I had written the cheques. I wrote them when I was drinking," Byrne told Magistrate H. C. Hall.

He had been remanded for probation report when he pleaded to the hotel charges last week.

SAANICH FIRE

'Jezebel' Rescued By A Whisker

By AB KENT

A goat is the central figure of this story and the heroine is the Saanich mother who entered a blazing shed to rescue the animal Tuesday.

Jezebel, a milk goat kept by the Garry Cue family at 4072 Wilkinson, emerged from the flames intact even to her modest goatie.

The winter feed for goat and a cow also kept on the premises went up with the shed, all three tons of it in hay and oats.

Mrs. Betty Cue and her friend Mrs. Pat Morberg, 4207 Glenford, who was visiting with her little boy, were in the Cue kitchen when Mrs. Morberg glanced out the window about 1:15 p.m. and saw the shed aflame.

"The kids!" they both cried, meaning their children Larry Cue, 5, and Steven Morberg, 4. Both women dashed from the kitchen and both fell on their faces on the slippery slope leading to the shed behind the house.

But the children were playing in a field some distance from the shed, safe and sound.

TETHERED INSIDE
Suddenly Mrs. Cue remembered Jezebel tethered inside the shed and unable to get out without help.

Mrs. Cue dashed in, the smoke and flames billowing and crackling around her head, untied Jezebel and ran back outside flushed and breathless.

"I was never so scared in my life," she said.

COMBUSTION
"We thought it was the kids. We thought they were in the shed..."

Firemen from the Saanich department were three hours wetting down the blaze, believed started by spontaneous combustion in the hay.

Strike Talks Set By Shipyard Men

British Columbia's 2,600 shipyard workers, faced with the companies' refusal to reopen negotiations in a contract dispute, are considering going on strike.

A meeting to discuss a strike vote has been called by representatives of 22 shipyard unions, to be held in Vancouver later this week.

Officials of the province's four major shipyards refused Tuesday to continue talks with the unions on pay and other contract issues.

J. W. Hudson, chairman of the B.C. Shipbuilders' Federation, charged the workers were pricing themselves out of jobs and the shipyards out of business. "and the federation (which represents the four yards) is not prepared to negotiate further."

78% AGAINST
The 22 unions earlier rejected by a 78 per cent vote a conciliation officer's settlement proposal of a 6 per cent pay increase over the next two years.

All four shipyards accepted the recommendation, although they are against any pay boost. Officials said they accepted the 6 per cent recommendation to "maintain continuity of employment."

Sam Jenkins, a spokesman for the Marine Workers and

MORE LAYOFFS AT SHIPYARD THIS WEEK

While wage negotiations are at a standstill between shipyards and unions, the work force at Victoria Machinery Depot continues to diminish.

Following laying-off of 25 men last week, yard general manager H. S. Hammill said today another "few, maybe a dozen" will be released this week.

"We are going further and further downhill," he said, "and we haven't touched bottom yet."

Boilermakers' Industrial Union, told The Times today Mr. Hudson's statement that workers' pay demands were pricing the shipyards out of business was "untrue and just plain misleading."

"During the royal commission on Canada's coastal trade (1955) a shipyard's representative admitted that shipbuilders' production on the west coast was so much higher than that on the east coast that it cancelled any differential in wages."

Mr. Jenkins said one B.C. shipyard (Burard) once asked its workers to drop a demand for more pay so it would win a French government contract.

"Later we discovered the yard made a net profit of $3,500,000, and there have been no more French contracts."

Mr. Hudson claimed rates are 30 per cent lower in east coast shipyards.

The unions here want a 12½ per cent hike, plus other contract changes. They have said a strike is "the last thing we want" and that they would prefer to negotiate.

Hunter Trials Next Tuesday At Riding Club

Fifth annual invitational hunter trials at Victoria Riding Academy are scheduled next Tuesday, Remembrance Day, at 1:30 p.m.

The contests will be staged in open fields at the rear of the riding club stable on Cedar Hill Cross Road, adjacent to Uplands Golf Club.

Included in the program of events will be open hunter trial, open hunter teams, junior hunter class, pair hunters over hunter course; choose-your-line event.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Rod Wools, 19, of 415 Francis, and Robert Malcolm, 26, of 1425 Fernwood, each were fined $15 in city police court today when they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

Wools told the court he met a man on the street who said he felt sick and asked Wools to carry a case of beer to a taxi-stand for him. "Naturally I helped him," Wools said.

Negotiations for a site for a new Oak Bay liquor store are still underway. Attorney General Robert Bonner said Tuesday. He felt the new store would be similar to the new LCCB store which opens Nov. 13 at Esquimalt.

Two boat ramps are being planned, city public works committee was told by city engineer James Garnett. He said one would be at Clover Point and the other near Fisherman's Wharf. Application for Capital Improvement District Commission grants for the ramps will be made.

City council public works committee Tuesday recommended a ban on all parking between 4 and 5:30 p.m. on the south side of Yates between Government and Broad to relieve rush-hour congestion. It also approved a recommendation that loading zones on Fort, between Cook and Douglas, be increased in size, and angle loading be prohibited.

Canadian Westinghouse Supply Co. bid for 130 street luminaires at $32.25 each was accepted by public works committee.

Although one of four identical bids for the contract, which prompted a city council decision to refer the tenders to the anti-combines division, the company's bid was accepted when committee was told it was offering an improved 1959 type of street light.

The heads of two pilfered parking meters were picked up by city police near Johnson and Cormorant at 11 p.m. Tuesday after a witness said he saw three youths tampering with meters.

William C. Rees, 460 East Burnside, was fined $250 in city police court today when he was found guilty of an impaired driving charge. Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded Rees to next Wednesday for a probation report on the matter of driver's licence suspension.

George Swinton, associate professor of the Fine Arts Department, University of Manitoba, will give two lectures here Monday.

At 12:30 p.m. he will speak on the "Myth of Philoctetes" at Victoria College. At 8:30 p.m., he will be at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and he will discuss "Gold and Tinsel," and attempt to distinguish between good painting and that which merely seems good.

Canadian National Railways Veterans' Association will meet at 2 p.m. Friday in Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Health Minister Eric Martin has said hospital costs have increased 175 per cent in the last 10 years. What percentage was due to improved hospital facilities and how much to salaries and wages?

—Grateful Patient.

A. The two are interrelated.

The 175 per cent increase is due to increase in numbers of beds, plus increase in numbers of employees, plus wage increases for employees. There has been a 40 per cent bed increase, and a 225 per cent wage increase, which includes wages for an 84 per cent increase in employee numbers.

Anyone wishing a question answered, is invited to send the question, along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Question and answer will be published daily.

TRAFFIC VICTIM Duncan M. ## AMALGAMATION REPORT

This is the seventh of 10 parts presenting the text of a report made by Dr. J. J. Deutsch to a Victoria-Saanich committee in which amalgamation of the two municipalities was recommended. The report is being printed in a serial form in the interests of voters who may cast ballots on the question.

The Financial Implications of Amalgamation:

Having analyzed the financial positions of the two municipalities, in the recent past, and having examined their prospective financial positions over the next five years, the committee attempted to portray the financial position of the united municipality which would result if amalgamation were carried out.

Before endeavoring to describe the financial implications of such an event, it is necessary to consider the way in which the administrative organizations in the two municipalities could be integrated and, also, the manner in which differing policies regarding municipal services could be made uniform.

Personnel Factor:

With regard to administrative integration, the committee has assumed that neither the municipal authorities or the public would wish to deprive the existing full-time employees of the two municipalities of their employment security or to affect unfavorably their existing rates of remuneration and benefits.

Consequently the committee suggests that if amalgamation takes place that all existing full-time employees of both municipalities who wish it be taken over by the united municipality at their prevailing rates of remuneration and benefits.

The over-staffing which might result would not, in fact, be serious because in the initial stages the process of integration would itself entail a good deal of extra work. Also, during this process of integration it would be wise to retain the local knowledge of the existing employees.

After the initial period the over-staffing could be taken care of relatively quickly through a strict policy of no-hiring until normal separations, turnover, and retirements have reduced the staff to the appropriate size. This is the general principle which is suggested.

The committee recognizes that there is another problem concerning the particular positions, ranks and precise duties of the two groups of existing officials in a single organization.

The committee has not had time to examine this aspect closely. In any case, these questions do not arise unless and until amalgamation is decided upon, in which event these matters would have to be considered in detail.

By PENNY SAVER

Guests may or may not go for 'em but a hostess who wishes to be different might try serving snails at her next cocktail party.

Honestly, they are delicious and, if topped with garlic butter and served in the shells hot from the oven, they'd most likely be a hit even with those people who say, "won't touch them!"

Packed in jars and imported from Denmark, the snails (shells and all) are priced at $1.50.

Antipasto is an Italian name for a combination of different kinds of hors d'oeuvres. And one shop in town is displaying the delicacy in a selection of olives, pickles, mackerel, carrots, gherkins, turnips, cauliflower, artichokes, mushrooms, fennel, celery, pimentos, onions, olive oil, tomato sauce, sugar and spices, all in a flat glass container ready to serve at your next early-evening party. The antipasto starts in price at 49 cents.

Smoked anchovy paste is good at any social gathering especially when its spread thinly on tiny pieces of brown toast or on little crackers. It's a tasty delicacy and one that is a wee bit different. Packed in Italy the paste is 43 cents a tin.

Olives stuffed with almonds and pimentos also hit the "little bit different" list. Tall slim bottles are selling at 49 cents each.

Pineapple sticks can be chopped up into bite sizes or kept in their original six-inch length for serving alone or atop crackers. Jars of the fruit are price tagged at 49 cents each.

I had so many calls about the little "good fortune" cakes I told you about a year ago I'm going to mention them again. Packed in the Orient, the cakes hold in their hollowed centres pieces of paper with fortunes written on them. These fortune cakes come in cellophane bags at 45 cents each.

Maybe you're giving a cocktail party? If so, then call me at EV 2-3131. I know where there are loads of specialties at reasonable prices.

DEAR ABBY...

You're Being Taken for a Ride!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife gets me sore. When I ask her if she wants to go out she says she would love to, but she has nothing to wear. I go to her clothes closet and I see no less than 30 dresses hanging there and still she tells me she has nothing to wear! I buy one suit a year, and I have plenty to wear. What's the answer?

HACK DRIVER. DEAR DRIVER: Your wife means she has nothing NEW to wear. But this excuse is no longer legitimate because now the older a lady's dress is, the newer it looks.

DEAR ABBY: For almost two years I have been happily married to a wonderful man. His parents treat me like their own daughter, but this one thing bothers me. My husband was married and divorced before I met him. His mother has picture albums which she shows to everyone when she has company. There are many pictures of my husband and his wife in this album. Some are cheek-to-cheek on the beach in affectionate poses. This hurts me very much. My in-laws have no use for this woman now so why do they keep her pictures in the book? About a year ago I asked my mother-in-law to remove the pictures and she said it would ruin her book. I think if she really loved me she would get rid of the pictures. Should I mention it again? It bothers me terribly.

HURT. DEAR HURT: Take some new pictures of your husband and yourself and be sure they are the same size as those you'd like replaced. Tell your mother-in-law you will gladly replace the pictures without ruining her book.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who spends $120 on a reducing course for herself and refuses to help her own sister out with a loan for the grocery bill?

DISGUSTED. DEAR DISGUSTED: She must be penny wise and pound foolish.

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column about the two 79's taking a trip together gave me food for thought. I am a widow and not quite 79, but I am over 60. Last year it happened to be convenient for me to attend a family celebration with a gentleman widower remotely related through in-laws. We stayed in separate hotels, not to be discreet but because the hotels were crowded. I found it much nicer than being tied to an older woman night and day. Last week I heard about a cruise which sounded inviting. He called me long-distance on business, and I asked him if he would be interested in the cruise. He said it sounded fine. I have no children and to heck with gossip, but he has children and grandchildren. Do you suppose they would take exception if he went on such a cruise? They might hesitate to criticize him to his face.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Most of my readers know what I think about age consciousness—I believe it ages more women than years ever do. I want to print part of a dynamic and amusing letter which came recently from a reader.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: I am 46 and never even thought about my age until recently when I had a shattering experience with a college registrar."

"I had asked how many hours I needed to qualify for my degree. I was rewarded with a fishy stare and the comment, 'After all, Madame, you are 45. Why do you want a BA degree?'"

"I work full time, maintain a home for my family, design and make most of my clothes and my daughter's, and am active in community affairs. I have frequently applied for positions in order to better my situation. The employer or personnel director usually fixes his or her eyes on a spot on the wall just above my head and does not listen to a word I say. When will the individual be considered on his own merits and not arbitrarily shelved at the age of 40?"

"I know some women who are old at 30. I know one child of 13 who is already old. I am convinced that age has no relation to calendar years."

All I can say to that is "Amen!"

The registrar is certainly old-fashioned and has not kept up with the times. Adult education is becoming an important part of so many schools. I long ago became convinced that the woman who thinks in terms of years rather than life actually and literally ages much more rapidly physically than the one who is so busy enjoying life that the thought of age seldom, if ever, occurs to her.

A Complete Wardrobe of Glasses

Yes, with one pair of glasses trying to do the work of several pairs required to do a good job, you are like unto the lady with but one dress. It might be fine for the kitchen but unsuitable elsewhere. For your work, for play, for business and for the formal occasion, you need the proper glasses to see well and look your best. The right glasses for a complete wardrobe are a worthwhile investment in comfort and satisfaction.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Blaseckie

Fairfield United Church Scene of Wedding Vows

Vows were exchanged recently in Fairfield United Church, between Norma Joyce Fraser and Clarence Patrick Blaseckie. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Fraser of Victoria, and the groom's parents are Mrs. Pearl Blaseckie and the late Nicholas Blaseckie of Campbell River, B.C. Rev. H. K. Johnston conducted the ceremony and the organist was Rodney Webster. Mrs. Webster sang "O Perfect Love" during signing of the register. The bride was given in marriage by her father. White and mauve chrysanthemums arranged in graceful baskets were used to decorate the church. Delicate white lace fashioned the wedding gown which was styled in ballerina length with matching jacket featuring lily point sleeves. A three-quarter length veil was held with a tiara of pearls. The bride wore a matched set of pearl earrings and necklace, gift of the groom, and carried a prayer book with a white orchid and stephanotis. Miss Jean Fraser as maid of honor and the bridesmaid, Miss Betty Blaseckie, wore pale green and pink chiffon ballerina-length gowns, respectively, with matching tiaras. Ted Rae was best man and

Give Thought and Care to Best Holiday Food Favorite—The Cake

Don't look now, but it's almost time to be planning your fruit cakes! With holiday cooking time just around the corner you won't want to be caught without a fruit cake of your own making on hand.

This fruit cake is one of the good tasting, less rich fruit cakes that keeps exceptionally well. It relies more on the natural sweetness and rich flavor of dried fruits—raisins, figs and prunes—than on the candied fruits for its fine qualities. A subtle spicing contributes to the delicious final result.

DARK FRUIT CAKE

One cup dried figs, 2 cups light or dark raisins, 1 cup cooked prunes, 1½ cups diced mixed candied fruits, grated rind of 1 orange, 1½ cups chopped nuts, ¼ cup fruit juice, 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar (packed), 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon mace, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Rinse figs, cover with water and boil 5 minutes. Drain and slice fine. Rinse raisins and drain. Pit prunes and chop fine. Combine all fruits, orange rind, nuts and fruit juice. To this mixture add one-half the flour and mix well. Cream shortening and sugars together thoroughly. Beat in eggs one at a time. Sift remaining flour with spices, salt, soda and baking powder. Stir into creamed mixture. Add fruit mixture and blend thoroughly. Turn into 10-inch tube pan which has been lined with two thicknesses of greased brown paper and one of greased waxed paper. Bake in slow oven (275 deg. Fahrenheit) for 2½ hours. Place shallow pan of water on bottom shelf of oven while baking. Makes 4 to 5 pounds cake.

Camosun Chapter Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Friday, at 2.30, headquarters, Courtney Street.

Ladies' Auxiliary—No. 12, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, Thursday at 8 p.m., in club auditorium.

Here's another generously fruited white fruit cake. The rich batter holds the fruits, peels and nuts in perfect suspension, and the cake slices nicely. This recipe calls for red and green glace cherries, but it may be made with all red glace cherries if the cook finds this more convenient.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

Three cups bleached or sultana-type seedless raisins, 2 cups red and green glace cherries, 1½ cups finely-chopped mixed candied peels (lemon, orange, citron), 1 cup silvered blanched almonds, 1 cup coarsely-chopped pecans, 4½ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 5 cups once-sifted pastry flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups butter, 1½ cups fine granulated sugar, 6 eggs, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, ¼ cup drained canned crushed pineapple, ¼ cup syrup drained from pineapple. Sherry or brandy optional. Yield—One 8-inch and one 6-inch square cake.

Neatly line one 8-inch and one 6-inch square cake pan, about 3 inches deep, with a layer of foil or 3 layers brown paper; grease top layer of brown paper. Pick over, wash and spread raisins on a tea towel to dry. Halve the cherries; prepare the mixed candied peels, almonds and pecans. Combine fruits, peels and nuts. Preheat oven to 300° F (slow).

Measure all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder and salt into sifter; sift over prepared fruit mixture. With the finger tips, mix until each small piece of fruit and peel has been separated and coated with the dry mixture.

Cream butter until soft and light in a large bowl or pre-serving kettle; gradually blend in sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating in well after each addition. Mix in lemon rind and crushed pineapple. Add fruit-flour mixture, part at a time, alternately with syrup drained from pineapple, combining thoroughly after

Applesauce Meat Balls For Healthy Appetites

The apple of any home-maker's eye is a new-found dish which not only adds a taste twist to her standard winter menus but satisfies her family's hungry appetites as well. For rainy-weather activities call for a special, stick-to-the-ribs quality which many favorite entrees fail to offer.

A recipe which is popular among homemakers for its wholesome nutrition is Applesauce Meat Balls, a novel variation of an old favorite. In this delicious dish, the flavor of well-seasoned ground beef is blended with tangy tomato soup, corn flakes and sweet, refreshing applesauce. Such a tasty combination will please your family or friends every time you serve it.

Two cups (10½-oz can) tomato soup, ½ cup water.

Crush corn flakes slightly. Combine with remaining ingredients except soup and water; mix well. Shape into balls about 1½ inches in diameter. Put into shallow baking pan. Combine soup and water; pour over meat balls. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 45 minutes. Serve immediately, accompanied by hot buttered rice or noodles and a green vegetable. Yield: 6 servings, 4 meat balls each.

each addition. Turn batter into the two prepared pans and spread evenly. Decorate top of cakes with blanched almond and pecan halves. Bake the cakes in preheated oven until set—2 to 2½ hours—covering them with a sheet of heavy brown paper. If they darken too rapidly, Stand baked cakes in their pans on racks until cold. If desired, brush tops of cold cakes generously with sherry or brandy. Store, closely covered, for about three weeks to ripen.

Renewed Troubles Over Celebrations

Finance committee Tuesday recommended that city council ask Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee to resolve a quarrel over dates.

Issue arose with a Jaycee request for permission to hold its annual exhibition again next May on Memorial Arena grounds.

Finance committee was told by City Clerk Frank Hunter, a former chairman of the celebrations committee, that Jaycees had skimmed the cream from its receipts by holding the fair immediately before the May 24 celebrations.

"They took over the car raffle, the May Queen and then the carnival," he said.

'READY TO FIGHT'

"We would be ready to fight them on fair ground but we're helpless because we are fixed to a May 24 date. Under the circumstances I think their operations are absolutely inexcusable."

Ald. A. I. Curtis observed that the Jaycees seemed to favor amalgamation of Victoria and Saanich but are "not in favor of co-operation with the celebrations committee."

Mr. Hunter said loss of the events to the Jaycees had given the celebrations committee difficulty in financing traditional events such as the giant parade and fireworks displays which produced no income.

He pointed out that the celebrations committee was a community organization that plowed all profits back into the following year's celebrations.

The Jaycees on the other hand took profits and disposed of them as they saw fit "including parties," he said.

"There are many fine fellows in the Jaycees on an individual basis but it is their activities as an organization that we take exception to," he said.

Harbor Fee Issue Gets Study by MP

Alleged discriminatory harbor fees against ships entering Esquimalt drydock will be investigated by A.DeB. McPhillips, Victoria MP.

He was commenting on a Yarrows Ltd. complaint that supertankers entering the dock are charged over $1,000, but in Vancouver there is no charge.

"Vancouver cannot handle the larger ships," he said, "and so this port is in a favored position."

"However I am in favor of having parity with Vancouver."

A similar letter from Yarrows was read to Esquimalt Council Monday and council voted to send a letter to Transport Minister George Hees endorsing the company's stand.

"It certainly seems very unfair," said Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by club readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Michael J. Holasek, aged 10, of Cuday, Wis., for his question:

What Causes Hail?

Hail can form only in a storm of great violence. Usually it pelts down from a thunderstorm or tornado. These storms are centres of violent winds and air currents, fierce clashes between masses of cool and warm air, damp and dry air. Whenever hail comes tumbling down you may be sure that a fierce weather battle is in progress way above your head.

A hailstorm is, of course, a small pellet of ice. You may capture one before it melts and slice it in half. The cross section looks like the inside of an onion. The ice seems to be arranged in layers, one outside the other. Some of these jackets are hard and white, some are softer and more transparent.

There are at least two theories as to how a hailstone is made. In any case it is born in a small local storm where violent air currents swoop up and down. The older theory suggests that the hailstone began as a small raindrop which froze to ice when it was whisked through a region of cold air. It then swooped through a region of warm cloud mist and became coated with moisture. This moisture froze into a jacket of new ice as the hailstone was whisked through cold air again. This theory tries to explain how the icy jackets were built around the hailstone.

A newer theory does not agree with this idea. However, it does agree that the hailstone was taken for a long roller coaster ride in the heart of a violent storm. It begins low in a cloud where freezing temperatures turn a raindrop into ice. At this point it is whisked aloft on a rising current of air. Here the cloud is supercooled.

Liquid Ready to Form Ice

This means that the temperature is below the freezing point of water but, for some reason, the liquid moisture in the cloud has not turned to ice. This moisture, whether it is mist or raindrops, turns to ice the minute it touches a cool surface. Ice showers which coat the telephone wires and put jackets of glassy ice on the trees are caused by supercooled moisture.

The frozen raindrop roller coats through masses of supercooled cloud mist high above the ground. As it touches these tiny droplets of supercooled moisture they turn to ice. An ice jacket is added to the hailstone. The longer the roller coaster ride, the bigger the hailstone becomes.

Finally it must fall. It may become too heavy for the rising current of air to hold aloft. It may lose the rising current and be swept into a current of descending air. In any case, down pelts our hailstone with a host of its icy relatives.

Whistles, Shouts, Applause

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

From both visual and musical viewpoints the Wagner Opera Company wound up its two-day visit to Victoria in triumphant style Tuesday night with the New York Opera Festival production of Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Color and glitter of the Italian renaissance filled the Royal Theatre stage in settings of unusual beauty, freshness and aptness.

And once more good and in many instances, outstanding voices topped the list of good things this company has to offer.

DIFFERENT CAST

Except in one or two cases this was a different cast to the one that had given us a memorable "Boheme" on Monday night.

Tenor Costanzo Gero, singing the extensive role of the Duke of Mantua, displayed a fine resonant voice and a fluency of production technique that tossed the light-hearted arias "Questa quella" and "Donna e Mobile" like a ball in a fountain.

But top favorites to judge by the whistles shouts and thunderous applause of a large audience were Ercole Bertolino as Rigoletto, the hunchback jester, and Phyllis Arick as Gilda, his daughter.

Gilda deserved to win her audience on the basis alone of her singing of "Caro nome," and for the quality of gentle innocence and poignancy she brought to the role.

Not only was she a lovely heroine with her long waving red-gold hair, delicate features and slender figure, but she has a coloratura voice that, while not powerful, is as sweet-toned as a soprano clarinet, effortless and absolutely pure in intonation.

Aside from a full, rich baritone, Bertolino possesses great acting gifts and should become a top personality on the American stage. Those who were moved last night by his deeply-felt performance as the agonized father will be surprised to learn that he is a 26-year-old recent immigrant from his native Italy.

OVER-POWERFUL

Frank Foti is a strong conductor who holds all parts together admirably. His orchestra had shaded its tone volume somewhat from the previous night, but in the Royal's uncovered pit was still over-ful at times, particularly in the brass and percussion section.

Victorians who lament the absence of visiting road companies in this city never had a better opportunity—for first class entertainment than this, and it is to be hoped the Wagner Company will return next year and to sellout houses.

City Financial State Healthy

The city's financial position is "healthy," City Comptroller Dennis Young told finance committee Tuesday when he presented statements of the first nine months' operations for 1958.

However, although the rate of tax collections at the Sept. 30 deadline was the highest yet, he said there was a "slowdown" in early tax payments for the first time in eight years.

C (To put in time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF" (Royal): For sheer entertainment MGM's adaptation of Tennessee Williams' play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," is difficult to beat.

It's oppressive, of course. What Williams' vehicle isn't? But it's as colorful, noisy and macabrely gay as a steam calliope playing Sousa at a summer fair during a lightning storm.

Parents should be warned, however, that—again as can be expected from Williams—the play is very adult, beds, booze and breeding being the chief ingredients of the boiling pot.

QUITE ASIDE FROM this the acting is excellent. Indeed it is not climbing too far out on the proverbial limb to prophesy that three Academy Award nominations could be the net result of "The Cat on the Hot Tin Roof"—Burt Ives as the dying "Big Daddy" who still looks upon the flesh-pots at 65 with a naked eye; Madeleine Sherwood as his all-too-daughter-in-law whose sole contribution to society is raising her "five neckless little monsters" (and one on the way), and, lastly, Elizabeth Taylor who, as Maggie the Cat, carries right on where she left off last year in "Rain-forest County" for which she won a nomination. Miss Taylor as last is showing the quality that was prophesied for her as a child actress. She improves with each new performance.

AS THE PLAY OPENS Big Daddy's two sons, the one-time college football star Brick (Paul Newman) and Gooper (Jack Carson) have arrived with their wives, Miss Taylor and Miss Sherwood (plus the monsters, of course) ostensibly to celebrate Big Daddy's birthday. They are also there to make sure that they will get their share of his $10,000,000 including 28,000 "of the richest acres west of the River Nile," should rumors prove true that Big Daddy shortly will have little use for his acreage—or anything else on this earth.

But there's trouble in the household. Brick no longer shares his bed with Maggie, the Cat but only with a bottle. Gooper is heavy-eyed with jealousy over his brother's athletic record, while Big Daddy has lived with Big Momma (splendidly played by Judith Anderson) for 40 years, hating her every minute of the time.

How each of these persons works out or fails to work out his or her respective problems makes "Cat on the Hot Tin Roof" one of the most exciting films of 1958.

First Three of Nine New Parking Projects

Here Are Two Phases

The offstreet parking program planned by city traffic engineer Norman Worsley and architect-planner Roderick Clark, has two phases.

First phase, taking about two years to complete at an approximate cost of $2,000,000 would:

1. Establish a four-tier parking garage for 350 cars on View, between Douglas and Bligh;
2. Establish a four-tier parking garage for 200 cars on the east side of Government, between Johnson and Yates;
3. Redevelop the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. parking garage to hold 300 cars;
4. Establish a ground level parking lot for 110 cars on the present main firehall site initially, and a garage for 500 cars if required by future needs.

Second phase of the program, costing about $3,000,000 and probably spanning about 18 years, would meet all future needs anticipated by establishing offstreet parking for:

1. 350 cars on property lying east of RCMP headquarters, between Courtney and Broughton;
2. 500 cars on increased lot at Hudson's Bay Co.
3. 100 cars on fill fronting Causeway;
4. 200 cars on a development near the present Court House;
5. 350 cars on property west of Mc & Mc on Government Street;
6. 350 cars on property between Bligh, Douglas, Johnson and Pandora;
7. 50 cars on property occupied by C and C Taxi on Government Street.

PARKING

Although the additional car spaces provided by the View Street garage would total only about 150, when present street and private parking lot spaces in the area are eliminated, the garage revenue would provide a key source of financing for the rest of the program.

FIRE HALL FIRST

Probably the first actual offstreet parking development to go into operation if the recommendations are accepted is the present main firehall property.

This would be demolished, when the firemen move into the new headquarters firehall at Yates and Camosun next spring, and a ground level lot for 110 cars could be established for about $10,000.

This lot ultimately could provide 500 car spaces in a ramp-type garage if a department store or similar large development located in the area.

BY CHRISTMAS

Mr. Garnett estimated the View Street garage could be in operation by Christmas next year if the development was given a green light quickly. The main firehall site could be developed before then.

Two other developments in the first phase of the program envisage:

Enlargement of the present T. Eaton Co. Ltd. parking garage to hold 300 cars. Cost is estimated at about $500,000. However, this project could be undertaken by Eaton's itself; if not, then by the city.

A tiered parking garage for 200 cars also would be erected on the east side of Government, midway between Johnson and Yates as soon as the View Street garage was operating smoothly.

Mr. Garnett, anticipating criticism of the proposal to raise parking meter rates, pointed out that it costs motorists about five cents to drive around a block once in search of a parking spot, a frequent occurrence at present.

This vehicle operation cost would be eliminated, thus cancelling out the higher meter cost that would make offstreet parking garages possible, because there would be fewer cars searching for street parking.

Immediate reaction by public works committee and about 15 members of the Downtown Business Association at the meeting was generally favorable to the principles of the program.

William Clark, president of the merchants' group, told the committee "you are doing what we hoped would happen ... we are very happy you have gone this far."

PRAISED

Other members of the association praised the engineering department and the committee for taking action in trying to solve the parking problem.

However, although they indicated they favored the general outline of the program, most reserved specific comments until they had time to study all the proposals in detail.

Later, Mr. Clark questioned whether meter rates should be increased. He also suggested a "pigeon-hole" type of parking garage, which would use elevators to shunt cars into parking spaces, would be able to pay for itself.

Earlier, Mr. Garnett said the pigeon-hole type of garage was

Contingency Fund Used to Cover Relief Payments

City welfare committee Monday recommended transfer of $1,814 from contingency fund to cover the city's share of a $98,020 over-expenditure on 1958 relief estimates.

Unexpected unemployment on a "greater magnitude than we have experienced during the postwar years" was responsible for the over-expenditure, city comptroller Dennis Young reported to the committee.

City manager C. C. Wyatt stressed that the $1,814 transfer would not result in any deficit or increase in taxes.

discarded in planning because it is the most costly type of parking facility. He also said most parking garages on the continent are ramp types.

G. Conway Parrott, president of the chamber of commerce, said any program to increase downtown parking facilities should be fully explored.

Mr. Garnett told the committee that the city should retain direct control of the program, through his department and a Downtown Business Association committee, under supervision of council. This would ensure that parking projects would be located where they would do the most good for the whole business area.

He added that the program was planned to meet not only present needs, but those that might arise if the city ever converted downtown streets for one-way traffic, constructed a heliport or saw other developments take shape that would affect traffic flow.

"The idea is to prevent erection of offstreet parking development that is expensive today and useless tomorrow," he said.

INTRODUCING THE NEW 1959 HILLMAN

everything you want in an imported car—plus Hillmanship

ECONOMY—35 miles to the gallon! That's the favorite economy feature of the Hillman. And there's another—the low initial cost. That's why, for the money, Hillman is "best buy" among imported cars selling for under $2000.
PERFORMANCE—larger engine, larger battery, increased acceleration for better performance at today's highway speeds.
COMFORT—deeper, foam rubber seating. Ride relaxed even on those long trips.

STYLING—Brilliant new curved grille. Beautiful new colors—vivid 2-tone, distinctive single colors.
SAFETY—Single-welded unit construction of heavy gauge steel for greater strength and safety... freedom from rattles.
HILLMANSHIP—to drive the 1959 Hillman is to discover it. It's the result of brilliant British craftsmanship, a precision-built engine, distinctive styling and solid construction. Discover Hillmanship today.

KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

COURTENAY (CP) — Replacement of a narrow steel bridge spanning the Courtenay River is a probability in 1959, city council learned Monday.

In a letter sent last week, Highways Minister Gagliardi told Mayor W. C. Moore that replacement of the Courtenay River bridge is included in 1959 estimates.

"While I am unable to make a definite commitment at this time," Mr. Gagliardi said, "we will anticipate doing the job next year, and I think it very likely that it will be carried out."

Councillors took the opportunity to complain that recent resurfacing of the bridge has made it more dangerous to negotiate than before.

CANDIDATE for election to Nanaimo city council in December will be George Molecey, chairman of the city's centennial committee. Other newcomers will be Jack Parker, teacher, and Douglas Greer, lawyer. They will contest seats of retiring aldermen P. J. Piper, Ed Blackburn and George Bryce.

TRADITION PRESERVED

'Nanaimo Night' For Guy Fawkes

NANAIMO (CP) — Believed alone among the cities of Canada, Nanaimo preserves the Guy Fawkes Day tradition, brought to the city from Britain by the city's first settlers more than 100 years ago.

Each Nov. 5, at dusk, scores of bonfires spring up. While the "Guy" tradition is disappearing, an identifiable effigy hangs over some of the fires.

Many of those who plan the fires and enjoy the hot dogs and fireworks that go with them are unaware of the origin of the custom. It is known now as Nanaimo Night. Children spend weeks preparing for it, gathering fuel for monster blazes.

BACK TO 1605
The observance recalls the discovery Nov. 5, 1605, of Guy Fawkes standing with lighted torch beside barrels of gunpowder in the cellars of the House of Commons in London, preparing to set off an explosion that would have eliminated King James I and both Houses of Parliament.

The Guy Fawkes Day tradition was introduced to Nanaimo in 1851 by passengers of the brig Harpooner—English miners who came here to work coal deposits which had just been found. The mines have since closed.

Poppy Taggers Out Thursday

CHEMAINUS — Thursday will be "Poppy Day" in Chemainus, when taggers will be in the downtown area from 9:30 a.m. on.

Members of the Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. Olga Ried, will conduct the sale of poppies and wreaths.

Timber Licence Nets $117,632

A licence to cut 30,000,000 board feet of mixed evergreen timber on Broughton Island, near Alert Bay, has been sold by the provincial forestry service for $117,632.

Buyer was the Emerson Bay Logging Co. Ltd. Nine years are allowed for cutting the cedar, hemlock, balsam, cypress, fir and white pine trees.

Promotions For Mounties

Promotion of E. W. Dunk of Victoria from the rank of corporal to sergeant, effective Nov. 1, was announced today by RCMP headquarters in Ottawa.

Other Vancouver Island promotions were as follows: P. J. Maquire, Alberni; D. A. Grayling, Victoria; and I. P. G. Awalt, marine division, Victoria, all constable to corporal.

Teachers Snub 6.7% Increase

DUNCAN — Teachers negotiating with Cowichan District 65 school board have rejected a pay increase offer of 6.7 per cent for 1959.

Next step in negotiation will be conciliation proceedings. The teachers received a 12 per cent salary increase this year.

Four Fire Brigades To Be Co-Ordinated

COURTENAY (CP) — Co-ordination of the Comox Valley's four fire brigades was assured this week when Courtenay City Council decided to pay $1,184 as its share of the $5,000 cost of seven two-way radios, to be installed in equipment at Courtenay, Cumberland, Comox and Union Bay.

We didn't run out of labour-saving ideas—we just ran out of space. We have over two dozen other pressure packages not shown here, but we must confess—we don't have fleece marker (for sheep) nor inhalant for poultry. But if you want them, we'll gladly get them for you!

Ottawa Sees U.S. Vote 'Policy Protest'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times' Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Outcome of the United States voting is interpreted here as a "dissatisfaction" with things as they are in that country, both in the economic and foreign policy fields.

Domestically the American voter was reacting against unemployment and the recession. In the foreign policy field he was apparently casting a vote against the Dulles "brink of war" policies.

How the election will affect Canada is difficult to assess, government sources said. They doubted that there would be little immediate reaction as far as this country was concerned.

The sweeping victory for the Democrats, however, means that it will be easier for the Democrats in Congress to get their ideas through that House.

A two-thirds vote in both the Congress and Senate is required to override the presidential veto. The Canadian government was watching with interest to see if the Democrats would roll up a sufficient majority to be able to override the veto. It was expected that the results in Alaska will play an important role because the Democrats might need representation from that new state in order to have sufficient numbers to beat the veto.

Because this was a mid-term election, however, authorities here did not look for any major changes in American policy.

A suggestion that because the Democrats are traditionally a low-tariff group, there might be an easing in trade restrictions is conceded as a possibility. But the southern Democrats are becoming high tariff in their outlook with the development of industry in the south and changes in cotton markets.

Their high-tariff ideas would offset the low-tariff approach of the northern Democrats. But traders in this country, who are incurably optimistic, are hopeful that the election outcome will strengthen Eisenhower in his stand against rabid Republicans who want more protection for American industry.

In a mid-term election domestic issues decide the outcome rather than questions of foreign policy. In this election Canadian authorities believe that unemployment and the recession had the biggest impact. The voters went out to register discontent with those economic conditions, knowing that their vote would not overthrow the administration.

President Eisenhower in the past has enjoyed the support of the large vote in the United States of those who want no war and no policies that might lead to war. There are indications that Republicans with Mr. Dulles' "brinkmanship" may have lost that vote, leading to the big victories for the Democrats.

Mr. Dulles will continue in charge of American foreign policy under President Eisenhower and as a consequence Canadians look for no great change in that policy.

There may be a slight softening in the United States antagonism to Red China, as a result of the elections. However, it was not expected to go so far as a move towards recognition. But the reaction of the American voter towards the U.S. position in the Formosa Straits might bring about a change in the administration's readiness to support Chiang Kai-Shek in his risky gamble with the Reds.

There is some worry in agricultural quarters here that the new American Congress might swing away from the anti-subsidy policies that the Eisenhower administration has been seeking to put across. Should this take place it could lead to increased American surpluses and more trouble for Canada in disposing of her surpluses.

Democrats Rout GOP

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democratic Party, riding a wave of popular support that rivalled Dwight D. Eisenhower's Republican presidential victory six years ago, has taken over control of both Houses of the United States Congress in its greatest strength since the Roosevelt era.

With all of Tuesday's contests for one-third of the Senate seats decided this morning, the Democrats had the heaviest representation in the Upper House since Franklin D. Roosevelt won his third term in 1940.

In the lower House of Representatives they tackled almost 100 seats to their majority of 35 in the outgoing House, all of whose 435 seats were up for renewal.

The pattern was followed in the voting for the governorships of 33 states with New York a notable exception, where Nelson Rockefeller beat Governor Averell Harriman of the Democrats, in a "battle of millionaires."

But the Democratic sweep

brought down Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland in California, running for governor, and former governor Goodwin Knight, running for senator.

Closely linked to some partisan issues were right-to-work referendums outlawing compulsory union shops in six states—all except Kansas defeated the measures.

The defeat of the president's party put on record Eisenhower's steady decline in influence since he won personal victory in 1956 for his second term but failed then to carry his party to power in the houses of Congress.

But as Eisenhower's star was setting, Republicans got a glimmer of hope from Rockefeller's personal victory.

Rockefeller for President?

Rockefeller's down-to-earth campaigning in New York City upset the traditional Democratic pattern of voting in the country's largest metropolis as it knocked the Democrats out of control of the most populous state and brought immediate speculation that the Republicans may seize upon Rockefeller as a popular figure to lead them in the next battle for the presidency in 1960.

Eisenhower himself cannot by law run for a third term, and in view of the near-record vote hailed by the Democrats as a vote of non-confidence in his administration, Vice-President Richard Nixon may find the going rough to get the Republican nomination for the top office two years from now.

Adlai Stevenson, twice defeated by Eisenhower as the Democrats' presidential candidate, hailed the result as a mandate for the opposition party "to produce thoughtful, creative leadership in a dangerous time."

He attributed the Democratic victory in the congressional and state governorship contests as reflecting public misgiving about Republican leadership at home and abroad, the high cost of living and "corruption, or at least that some ethical standbys were not fulfilled."

This last was one of the few references in the campaign and its aftermath to the resignation of Eisenhower's aide, Sherman Adams. His name was linked with that of Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine in investigations of government favors sought by the latter.

An early indication of the tide was the victory in sterner Republican Vermont of the first Democratic congressman sent to Washington from that state in 106 years.

An intra-party dispute was blamed in large measure for the Republican defeat in California which saw the eclipse of Knowland, one of the 1960 presidential aspirants.

Attorney General Edmund (Pat) Brown defeated Knowland for the state governorship, Knowland's first defeat in 25 years of political campaigning.

ELECTION REACTION

Spend Advocates Supported — Ike

From Times News Services

Here's the reaction from the U.S. and Europe on the big Democratic victory at the polls Tuesday:

President Eisenhower: The electorate obviously voted for spending advocates in giving the Democrats greater control. He called any trend toward bigger federal spending a dangerous one.

He emphatically replied "not at all" when asked whether he expects to have additional trouble during the next two years in dealing with Congress. Vice-President Richard M. Nixon: "Republicans worked for two months. Our opponents worked for two years. The result was inevitable."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler: "The voters repudiated President Eisenhower's leadership and Republican campaign tactics. They registered their satisfaction with the constructive record of the Democratic-controlled 85th Congress."

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn: "There was no single issue nationally... the main trouble was not enough Republican votes. We have no alibis."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson: "The American people have decisively endorsed the constructive and confident leadership of the Democratic Congress. They have made it clear that the people do not want a veto of the 20th century."

Adlai E. Stevenson: "The Democratic party has received a mandate to produce thoughtful, creative leadership in a dangerous time."

Labor unions: Acclaimed returns as ensuring a Congress that can wreck all existing state right-to-work laws at one swoop and enact new social legislation.

London Evening Standard: "Landslide is blow to Ike."

London Star: "Democrats sweep to victory," attributing the outcome "largely to anti-Eisenhower feeling."

Stockholm trade union paper Aftonbladet: "Without doubt President Eisenhower's regime lost face to a high degree during the last years, not only abroad but also in the eyes of the Americans."

Guess th' Chamber o' Commerce won't mind grass growin' in th' streets long's it's on purpose.

Th' U.S. voters seem t' hev said nix on Nixon.

Women should like jury duty. They hev t' do a lot o' listenin' but they git t' hev th' last word.

20-YEAR SCHEME DRAFTED

$5 Million Plan For City Parking

New Facilities For 3,000 Cars

By JOHN MIKA

A $5,000,000 20-year development program to provide 11 downtown off-street parking sites for more than 3,000 cars without using a cent of tax money was presented Tuesday afternoon by the city engineering department.

First phase of the program, providing space for 1,000 cars at a cost of $1,785,000 could be completed within two years if all goes well, half of it by Christmas next year.

The plan will go to next week's city council meeting with recommendations to prepare the way for launching of the first phase.

The developments would include ground level sites—the first on the present main fire-hall property—and four-story parking garages—the first on View between Douglas and Blanshard.

The whole program could be financed entirely from parking revenues and doubling the present street parking meter rates.

Some streets would be closed to provide pedestrian shopping malls and eventually the Causeway would be widened by earth fill for an extension of Wharf Street as a truck route to James Bay area.

The program, presented by city engineer James Garnett to a joint meeting of public works committee and businessmen, would "revitalize and beautify" the downtown shopping area.

A net gain of more than 2,000 parking spaces over present facilities would be achieved by the total program. New spaces, enlargement of some present facilities and loss of others would be involved.

Four-Tier Garage for 350 Cars

First parking garage—a four-tier ramp facility for 350 cars—would straddle View Street off Blanshard. The street would be closed on both sides of Douglas, which would be the only road cutting through an area of five city blocks.

Pedestrian shopping malls would run from the parking garage down to Douglas and from Douglas down to Broad, where a short pedestrian mall would stretch along Broad from View halfway to Fort.

Total cost of the development would be $875,000, including $290,000 for the parking garage and $200,000 for erection of new stores to replace those torn down. The latter amount would be self-liquidating.

Car access to the garage would be off Blanshard with pedestrian malls and arcades giving access to Fort, Yates, Douglas and Broad.

Parking rate recommended for the tiered garages was 10 cents for the first hour.

But Mr. Garnett said he expected most shoppers would not have to pay anything for the parking because many stores probably would pay parking tickets of their customers. This could be done by stores stamping the tickets and paying for them when billed.

To make certain the garages would be used fully, street meter rates would have to be increased to the same charge.

This would involve increasing all meter rates to five cents per half-hour. One-hour meters would still be used. Most meter rates are set at five cents per hour now.

Present meter revenues average more than $100,000 annually.

Revenue Would Finance Program

By doubling the revenue, the entire offstreet parking program could be financed without using any of the city's present revenue.

The street meter increase, recommended to coincide with opening of the View Street garage, would be more than adequate to pay the cost of the initial development over a period of 15 years.

Surplus from the meter rates and the revenues from the parking garage would be used to finance all the succeeding developments.

Money to start the View

Street garage could be entirely borrowed on the strength of a decision to raise the street meter rates.

Here's how a motorist would use the garage:

Driving into it off Blanshard, he would be given a ticket stub and assigned space as an attendant; the motorist would park, walk out and do his shopping along the pedestrian mall; and, returning, he would present his ticket and pay the charge, unless one of the stores had stamped it, pick up his car and drive off.

Sommers Verdict Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — The jury in the bribery trial of Robert Sommers, former minister of lands and forests, will deliver the final verdicts this afternoon.

Word that the jury was ready with its verdict in the complex case came shortly after noon from the hotel deliberation rooms.

The jury had lunch at the hotel before court was assembled to hear the verdicts.

The nine men and three women have been considering the bribery phases of the case since Tuesday night.

The jury will deliver a total of 57 decisions on 12 charges against individuals and firms alleged to have bribed Sommers for his favor in the issuance of forest management licences while he was in office. They will also return verdicts on seven counts against the 47-year-old former minister as the alleged recipient of bribe money totalling thousands of dollars.

Sommers, who this same jury convicted of conspiracy last Saturday, was minister from 1952 until his resignation in 1956.

WERE LOANS

He admits to the receipt of some $7,100 but says the moneys were loans from his friend Wilson Gray, which were covered by notes and repaid.

Gray, 46-year-old timber brokerage executive, was convicted Saturday along with Sommers on the conspiracy counts and his firms, Pacific Coast Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, also were found guilty of the same counts.

When the jury delivers its verdicts in the bribery, phase of the case, it will mean the windup of Canada's longest trial after 79 actual sitting days.

The presiding judge, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, is expected to order an adjournment for a day or two before passing sentence on those found guilty.

The jury, which took more than 50 hours to reach its verdicts on conspiracy, and then could not agree in the cases of three of the accused, was given the bribery phases of the case late Tuesday. They deliberated for some two hours in the jury room and then retired to their hotel across the street for dinner and more deliberation last night.

Leaders Talk World Trade, NATO Problems

PARIS (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and French Premier Charles de Gaulle met for the first time today.

They held wide-ranging discussions on world problems, including the general's plan for a reorganization of NATO.

A communique said afterwards that "they evoked, in the spirit of old and profound friendship and the alliance which unites the two countries, the present great problems of the world."

A French spokesman said later that the two leaders concentrated on two points:

—De Gaulle's letter to President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan allegedly suggesting a Franco-American-British "triumvirate" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

—The British-backed plan for a European free trade area, which French opposition has nearly wrecked.

Informed sources had said earlier that Diefenbaker would tell de Gaulle that the general's proposal was unacceptable to Canada, which is also a member of NATO.

The sources had said that Canada was not in favor of an actual reorganization of NATO machinery as much as increased use of what already exists.

Springhill Buries Her Dead

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — The sun shone brightly on Springhill Tuesday.

The air was still. Smoke rose straight up from chimneys. Peace seemed everywhere.

But there was no peace. It was the 12th day. Springhill still buried her dead.

On the green lawns of the cemetery halfway down the hill, grave-diggers worked in relays. Fresh mounds of earth scarred the far slope.

A police car led a funeral cortege down the hill. There were two hearses. The Embree brothers, they said. Eleven funerals Monday, seven Thursday.

Meanwhile recovery of nine bodies from the crushed No. 2 coal mine continued slowly and painfully today.

One hundred men have been saved. The known death toll is 74.

And over on the other side of the hill, out of sight of the cemetery, traffic moved as usual, but people stood in little groups on the corners, talking.

A man with greying hair and a flushed face asked another man:

"Why does God let such things happen?"

Another funeral passed. In the cemetery the grave-diggers worked on. Another funeral moved through the gates.

Downtown, flags flew at half-staff on the Miners' Hall, the Lodge Hall, the Post Office.

Smoke rose from the chimneys—smoke of coal brought here from Sydney. Springhill, a town that lived on coal, had none of her own.

California, had switched candidates.

Knowland won a victory in the party primary earlier this year which determined the Republican candidate for the governor's chair, contending that the state was threatened with "labor-boss rule." Knight, deprived of the chance to run again for governor, then tried for the Senate seat vacated by Knowland.

Labor was also an issue in Michigan, where Democratic Governor G. Mennen Williams campaigned on the Republican's recession record in the automobile industry's centre, and won a record sixth consecutive term, even though the worst of the American industrial slump appears over now.

The "right to work" proposals were so labelled by their supporters because they would make illegal compulsory union membership in order to hold jobs under labor contracts.

Heavily industrialized Ohio swamped the measure and the proposal was downed handily in California, Washington and Colorado. Idaho voters turned it down by a narrow margin and only Kansas approved the ban on union shops.

Besides Kansas, 17 other states, mostly in the South, have approved such legislation.

Personality factors were prominent in the national voting. Republican stalwart John W. Bricker lost his Senate seat in a Democratic landslide in Ohio, but his fellow old-guard rightwinger, Senator Barry Goldwater, rode roughshod over his Democratic opponent in Arizona in a reversal of the national trend.

On the Democratic side, prominent winners were Senators John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri, both being talked up as hopefuls for the next presidential campaign.

The Republicans fared best in the more conservative eastern states despite their shocking congressional defeat in Vermont. They gained the Rhode Island governorship besides that of New York and preserved Senate seats in Vermont, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. But in the western farm belt they lost influence, with only Nebraska and North Dakota remaining as islands of Republicanism in the Plains states.

They held out locally in Arizona, Idaho, Oregon and Wyoming against the Democratic landslide that rumbled to the Pacific coast.

Tunis Claims Invasion By French

TUNIS (Reuters)—Tunisian sources said tonight French forces estimated at two regiments and supported by tanks have entered Tunisian territory from Algeria in the Bou Jaber frontier area.

Sadok Mokkadem, Tunisian secretary of state for foreign affairs, made a strong protest to the French embassy here against "the violation of national soil by French ground forces," the sources said.

The sources said earlier that the Tunisian frontier village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef had been under mortar fire.

First reports spoke of some casualties.

Ten Thousand Police Battle Mob in Tokyo

TOKYO (Reuters)—Ten thousand police tonight tried to restrain milling masses of demonstrators as they snaked through Tokyo in protest against a government bill to increase police powers.

Police reinforcements swarmed into the capital to keep order. It was one of the city's biggest demonstrations since the end of the war.

OTTAWA GIVES $100,000 TO DISASTER FUND

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to donate $100,000 to the Springfield, N.S., disaster fund, Acting Prime Minister Green announced after a cabinet meeting today.

He told reporters that aside from this contribution, the central administration will co-operate with the Nova Scotia government to consider what other federal aid should be provided for the "people who acted so courageously in this tragedy."

WASHINGTON TIMBER PRACTICES ATTACKED

OLYMPIA (AP)—Washington's timber management practices came under fire Tuesday from state representative Gene Neva, Aberdeen Democrat.

Neva charged that the state is losing 47 per cent of its possible revenue from timber sales because of low appraisals.

He contended that the Department of Natural Resources employs about 200 persons to do the work 70 employees were doing before timber and land functions were consolidated.

Neva also claimed that the department requires too large deposits from timber purchasers, has forced timber sales on a depressed lumber market and put up timber for sale in tracts too large for small operators to bid on.

Witnesses Sought In Hit-Run Injury

Witnesses to hit-run traffic accident on Cook Street Sunday night are sought by city police, in an effort to track down the fugitive motorist.

Mrs. Elizabeth Trull, 81, of 1024 Pendergast, is in "good" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple injuries and a broken left leg.

The woman was in collision with a car as she attempted to cross between Suttie and Oxford at 5:45 p.m.

Driver of the car got out to look at her lying in the street, then drove from the scene. He was chased by another motorist.

Rockefeller Upset Co-Millionaire

NEW YORK (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller's election as governor by a majority of more than 500,000 votes skyrocketed him today as a possibility for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

The multi-millionaire's overwhelming victory over wealthy Democratic Governor Averell Harriman stood out particularly because of its contrast with Republican defeats in other states.

It also appeared to knock out whatever chance Harriman may have had for the Democratic presidential nomination two years hence. Harriman had sought the nod in 1952 and 1956.

The campaign spearheaded by Rockefeller also led to election of Republican representative Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester as U.S. senator. Keating, regarded as an under-dog throughout the campaign, defeated Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan for the office Republican Senator Irving M. Ives is vacating for reasons of health.

Returns from 11,510 of 11,525 election districts gave: Rockefeller 3,115,186; Harriman 2,539,821.

Rockefeller has insisted—and repeated today—that he is not interested in 1960 possibilities and that he has "no other intention" than to serve his four-year term as governor. Rockefeller told an early-morning press conference he intends to lead the Republican party in New York state and he expects to head the state delegation to the next Republican national convention.

Rockefeller and his backers went on the theory from the outset that New York voters never would elect a so-called conservative.

Like Harriman, he spoke out against "right-to-work" laws, in favor of continued controls on rents and against any increase in New York's 15-cent subway fare. Harriman ran with the Liberal party as well as the Democratic party nomination.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm in moderately active trade at the Winnipeg grain exchange today. Orders for United States interests and export accounts were evident in flax. Although there was no report of export business indications were that some sales were developing.

There was fair shipping demand for barley and reports of modest export business to the United Kingdom. Exports of parcel lots of oats were also in evidence.

Rye showed considerable irregularity and prices eased off from early highs.

Compulsory Insurance for Hunters Urged

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Should hunters be forced to carry liability insurance? If they were would it lessen the toll in the woods? Or would they still march into the forests, pulling the trigger at will and creating, or becoming, another vital statistic?

Junior Chamber of Commerce and some senior Chamber members feel that compulsory hunting insurance might reduce the toll of fatalities. Other senior Chamber members feel such insurance would result in no recession in burial traffic. This group contends that a certain group of "sportsmen" would be more trigger-happy than ever if they went after game with the knowledge that no matter who fell before their careless bullets, they were protected by insurance.

Jim Murray, of the Chamber's public affairs group, believes all hunters should be tested before receiving a hunting licence.

"Anyone afflicted with color-blindness or deafness can go hunting. All he needs is money for a gun and shells. But if the same man wants to buy a car, he must take a test before he can drive it," Mr. Murray says.

F. L. Shaw supports compulsory insurance "in view of the recklessness and indifference of hunters." But the group tabled a Jaycee motion asking for support until the matter can be investigated.

Animal lovers and sportsmen will doubtless be at each other's throats over any proposal such as compulsory insurance. Protect-the-game group will advocate it because it will be another step in leaving wildlife untouched. Sportsmen will protest that it adds another burden to those seeking outdoor recreation.

"Long ago the government moved to prevent the complete destruction of wildlife by determining that certain game can be shot only in season. But nobody has moved to preserve the hunter. It's time they did."

Horticulturists will favor the suggestion by parks board chief Herb Warren that city parking lots are "too drab."

He suggests that trees and shrubs would brighten them. Chamber officials believe he has a good point. They plan to ask him for more details. All of which means that you may have to be careful when you park your limousine. There may be a hydrangea lurking nearby.

Erie Mallett and Ken Murphy have been re-elected chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the chamber's public affairs group.

Elected to the executive were F. L. Shaw, Aubrey Kent, Charles Nelles and Jack House.

Ken's Been Busy

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI)—Back in the days when Joe Louis was enlisting various pugilists in his "bum of the month club" the dark destroyer was offered a bout with a gladiator named Mello Bettina.

Mello, recognized in New York State as the light-heavyweight champion of the world, was a southpaw. This, in ordinary language, means—he was left-handed.

And Louis had never engaged in hostilities with someone who took a menacing stance from this side of the torso.

"I will go down to the gym and work out with a southpaw," Louis said. "Then I will let you know."

Joe wasn't gone long. And his reply was emphatic.

REACTION TYPICAL. "I," he asserted firmly, "don't want absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with no southpaws. Bettina is out."

The Brown Bomber's reaction is typical of those in the boxing trade. Managers shy away from left-handers and so do opponents.

"If he's your boy," explained one pilot, "nobody wants to fight him. If he's an opponent, he's tough to fight and usually he'll make your boy look bad even if you win."

"The trouble with most of them," he added, "is that they think left-handed, too."

This seems like a bad rap to hang on a fellow simply because he down his vegetables with his left hand or jabs with his right. You might think, to listen to the boxing folk, that southpaws were all left-handed shortstops.

But one lad who has survived this attitude remarkably is Kenny Lane, the Muskegon, Mich., lightweight who tackles Lahouari Godhi, the alphabet soup Algerian from Paris, in Friday night's televised fight from Syracuse.

Lane has been very busy with a total of 59 fights, and very successful with 53 victories over that stretch.

But the "I told you so" guys of boxing will point out that Lane never has won the lightweight title.

In rebuttal, you can say "almost." He boxed lightweight champion Joe Brown last July and it was so close that Brown hasn't been up on a soapbox demanding that Lane fight him again.

ANCIENT PREJUDICE

True, there have been only nine left-handed champions in the whole history of boxing. These were Bettina, middleweights Lou Brouillard, Tiger Flowers, Al McCoy and Johnny Wilson; welterweight Young Corbett III; bantamweight Jimmy Carruthers; featherweight Freddie Miller and flyweight Jackie Paterson.

But the truth is that most managers, when they see a likely prospect who is left-handed, put him in the gym and convert him into a right-hander. Most of the good left-handers you see are natural left-handers.

Dave Charnley, the British Empire lightweight champion, is a southpaw and, along with Lane, may help to give the left-handers a new standing. It is to be doubted, however, because the prejudice is too ancient. But one thing is sure. Lane is a southpaw who will give you a good fight.

Stevenson's Pair Spark Maroon Win

Harvey Stevenson fired both goals Wednesday evening at Memorial Arena as Maroons defeated Capitals, 2-1, in the bantam division of the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association. The lone Capital tally was scored by Barry Dennis.

In a morning game, in the same division, Royals defeated Senators, 3-1, on goals by Peter Fitterer, Bill Kneazky and Brian Chamberlain. Mike McAvoy fired Senators' answering goal.

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Escribeno, four-year-old Venezuelan colt and winner of the Simon Bolivar Stakes, became a surprise entry Tuesday in the $100,000 Washington, D.C., International to be run Nov. 23. This increased the field to 10 starters.

Venezuela won the International two years ago with El Chama, but no representative was expected in this year's event due to internal troubles in the South American country.

The two Russian horses, Zaryad and Garnir made their

(From CP and UPI Reports)

Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins' coach, has roared a rebuttal to New York Ranger coach Phil Watson's criticism of referees in the National Hockey League.

"Watson's punchy," shouted Schmidt.

"He burns me up," the Boston coach said. "He's not winning and he's making excuses."

ARGOS MONEY AHEAD?

Flops on Field But Not at Gate

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts were a flop on the scoreboard in the Big Four Football Union this year, but they were no slow-pokes at the box office. They'll probably end the 14-game schedule with money in the bank, up to $50,000.

This is the only cheerful note facing executives as they conduct the postmortem for the cellar-dwelling Argos. The puzzler, following Argonauts' humiliating 44-7 loss to Montreal Alouettes last Saturday, concerns the status of coach Hamp Pool.

Argonauts, along with many other pro clubs, don't issue financial statements for public consumption but unofficial crowd figures for the team's seven home games show 149,593 persons watched the Argos stumble to their third straight last-place finish. That's an average of 21,370 a game, compared with last year's average of 17,395.

Nothing will be known officially about Pool until the club's management committee of seven men meets after Argonauts' final game against the Al at Montreal Saturday. General manager Lew Hayman is mum on the question.

"I said in the middle of the season that question would not be considered until the end of our season. The season ends Saturday in Montreal. Then the management committee will have a meeting and decide what we'll do about 1959."

Fightin' Grandpappy Sticks to His Tavern

SEATTLE (AP)—The comeback of Harry (Kid) Matthews has been knocked out by a left hook to the wallet and the grandpa kid said Tuesday he will remain an ex-heavyweight and active tavern keeper.

Matthews said he was prompted to announce comeback plans last week when offered a sizeable chunk of cash to meet Ingemar Johansson of Sweden in an exhibition bout here this month.

"If I had done well against Johansson," said Matthews, "I planned to go on with a comeback. I'm not broke and I have a good business—I'm not going to abandon it for a long and costly training program."

Matthews, twice a grandfather at 35, had said he believed he could whip most of the present crop of heavyweights. He thought the purse for the Johansson show would underwrite his training, but said the final offer was smaller than expected.

Champion Favored In Non-Title Bout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Lightweight boxing champion Joe Brown, unbeaten in his last 20 fights, was a 13-to-5 favorite to add Johnny Bussio of New York to his list of victims in a non-title fight tonight.

Montreal Plans 10 Skating Rinks

MONTREAL (CP)—The city parks department plans to build about 10 covered artificial ice-skating rinks if the first one now being designed proves successful, parks director Claude Robillard said Tuesday.

GIANTS KNOW NOW

BALTIMORE (AP)—Johnny Unitas, free-flying quarterback who has sparked Baltimore Colts to six straight victories, will be out of action for three to four weeks.

The Colts admitted Tuesday that Unitas, injured Sunday against Green Bay, has several fractured ribs and air in the chest cavity. They had previously said he probably would not miss a game—that he was only bruised.

Colt Quarterback Hurt

Colt officials were playing as they prepared to meet New York Giants, Sunday. The Giants last weekend tripped up previously unbeaten Cleveland, 21-17.

"We are sorry the news broke today on Unitas," said coach Weeb Ewbank. "We kept quiet and asked the team physician to do the same because we wanted the Giants to get ready for John all week and then spring George (Shaw) on them."

Cat's Out of the Bag

Ironically, it was an injury to Shaw two years ago that gave Unitas his chance at quarterback—and he performed so well that Shaw has ridden the bench most of the time since.

Shaw was a standout Sunday after going in for Unitas in the second quarter, with the Colts leading Packers 14-0. He engineered six more touchdowns on 10 pass completions in 13 tries and some deceptive signaling that kept the Packers off-balance.

COUGARS FACE . . .

Luce Still Same Pirate

Big Luce is on deck tonight. And it seems apparent that Lucien Dechene hasn't changed . . . much. Perhaps a little wiser and a little rounder than he was a few years ago when New Westminster was his port of call during the hockey season.

They still remember and adore big Luce over in the Royal City. Memorial Arena regulars here haven't forgotten him either. The rotund goalkeeper, now with Saskatoon Quakers, has been the man most responsible for a flock of Victoria Cougar defeats.

Lucien Dechene is 33. Now, after spending 10 years—his entire pro career—in the Western Hockey (nee Pacific Coast) League, some are apt to suggest he is "over the hill."

Don't suggest it too loud, partner, or somebody may haul out the record book.

... OLD FOE TONIGHT

Seasons' records suggest Dechene hasn't lost any of his skill. League president Al Leader's averages show that Monsieur Dechene is still the same old puck pirate. His glossy goals-against average of 2.57 is second only to the one owned by Edmonton's Denny Riggin.

And there you have a glowing reason why Quakers are running second to Edmonton Flyers in the WHL's Prairie Division. Quakers are only two points behind Edmonton but have three games in hand.

Tonight, Dechene and his Saskatoon chums hope to pick up those two points when they meet the Cougars at Memorial Arena.

"Is there a better way to start our first coast trip?" asks Lucien.

It's Faster Company, But Same Old Peacosh

For most Western Hockey League teams, today's bad news concerns Vancouver's Walt Peacosh.

Peacosh, it seems, hasn't forgotten how to score goals.

The rookie Vancouver winger was quite a goal-scorer in his junior days with Flin Flon Bombers. Walt finished his junior career with two successive 50-goal seasons and he kept up his prolific production when he stepped up in rank to Penticton V's of the Okanagan Senior League.

Now he's a pro and he's still producing.

THREE TIMES

Peacosh flicked in three goals, including the winner, as Vancouver Canucks jumped into second place in the WHL's Coast Division with 43 victory Tuesday night over Calgary Stampeders of the Prairie Division.

Edmonton Flyers, leaders of the Prairie Division, dropped a 6-4 decision to Winnipeg Warriors, but the game had no effect on the Prairie standings.

Spokane plays host to New Westminster, Victoria meets Saskatoon on the Cougars' ice, and Vancouver visits Edmonton tonight.

Peacosh scored his goals all on assists from Phil Maloney, on his first turn on the ice in each period.

His first goal came at 45 seconds of the first period, his second at 36 seconds of the second and his third at 1:07 of the final.

Dan Belisle tallied the fourth Vancouver goal at 13:20 of the second.

Chuck Blair, Fred Hucul and Eddie Dorohoy netted the Calgary counters. Dorohoy's goal coming with 75 seconds remaining.

PULL GOALIE

Stampeders pulled goalie Roy Edwards with a minute remaining but it didn't help.

At Winnipeg, Warriors scored two goals within 24 seconds in the third period to upset the Edmonton crew in a wide-open game.

Warrior winger Pete Kapusta counted his second goal of the game at 16:26 in the last period to break a 4-4 tie. Defenceman Bob Chrystal connected for his second of the night at 16:50 to clinch the win.

The victory was not enough to raise the Warriors out of last place in the Prairie Division.

Time Tells Tale in Trial

NEW YORK (AP)—Hugh Wiley of the United States international team captured the West Point challenge jumping trophy Tuesday as the National Horse Show opened at Madison Square Garden.

Wiley gave his grey gelding, Master William, a faultless ride over the eight obstacles and was caught in 38.9 seconds for his effort.

As it turned out, time was the important factor because three other entries—all from Canada—went clear.

Black Hawk, handled by Jim Elder, was second in 39.5; Beau Blue, with Tom Gayford in the saddle, finished third in 43.9; and John Peel, under Jim Elder, was fourth in 44 flat.

GIANTS KNOW NOW

Colt officials were playing as they prepared to meet New York Giants, Sunday. The Giants last weekend tripped up previously unbeaten Cleveland, 21-17.

"We are sorry the news broke today on Unitas," said coach Weeb Ewbank. "We kept quiet and asked the team physician to do the same because we wanted the Giants to get ready for John all week and then spring George (Shaw) on them."

INTERCOLLEGIATE UNION LOSES BRANDON COLLEGE

SASKATOON (CP)—Brandon College has withdrawn from the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union for 1958-59, a spokesman for the men's athletic board at the University of Saskatchewan said today.

The move leaves the Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia in the union.

Lions Claim Rumors False

MONTREAL (CP)—Any decision on whether coach Doug "Peahead" Walker of Montreal Alouettes football club will be with the team next season will have to wait until this one is finished, says general manager Gorman Kennedy.

Kennedy was commenting on a story by the Montreal Star Tuesday that Walker may be in his last year with the Als.

A Day to Remember And One to Forget

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Tuesday was a day of mishap and irony for 23-year-old Robert Corle, leading apprentice and second-ranking rider of the Garden State Park meeting.

The young rider was tossed from Gene Lott's Busher's Bean in mid-stretch in the first race and was shaken up. The horse broke both forelegs and was humanely destroyed.

Corle passed up the second race but came back to win the third race aboard Major Watson. A jinx still hovered over the youngster as a double claim of foul was lodged against him. It was not allowed.

In the fourth race Corle was tossed from Shannondale shortly after the break when pinched by Gai Rouge and Ocean Blue. He suffered a possible fracture of the left leg.

A tournament of champions is in the offing on the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club courts when the third annual Victoria Racquets Club invitational badminton tournament is staged Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Defending women's singles crown will be Victoria's Maureen Bray, who also holds the provincial crown.

Strong out-of-town entries should make the event an outstanding one with the entry of Bert Fergus, of Vancouver, former Canadian doubles champ; Claire Lovett, Vancouver, former Canadian women's singles champion, and Nick Johnston of Seattle.

Another former Canadian titlist from Vancouver attending the meet will be Mrs. Jean Bardsley, along with Bill Barney, of UBC, one of the rising young stars of the game from eastern Canada.

Play will start Friday at 7:30 p.m. and continue Saturday and Sunday at 9 a.m., with finals in all events expected to start Sunday noon.

Entries will be accepted until noon Friday.

POWELL RIVER WINS DAMAGES FOR LOST TUG

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada, in a judgment made public Tuesday, confirmed an award of $33,106 and interest to the Powell River Company Ltd., of Powell River, B.C., for loss of a tugboat.

The tugboat, Teeshoe, built in Vancouver in 1924, was lost Dec. 4, 1954.

The Powell River Company was awarded $33,106 and interest in a judgment of the admiralty district of British Columbia, which found that the loss of the tugboat was due to the negligent operation of the steamship Giovanni Amendola. The owners of the steamship subsequently brought an appeal against the amount of damages awarded.

In the Exchequer Court judgment, Justice J. C. A. Cameron dismissed the appeal with costs.

'They Must Pay Own Way'

City finance committee Tuesday recommended that no tax exemptions be allowed on private school teacherages or private clubs.

The committee recommended rejections of applications for tax exemptions made by St. Louis College and the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said he could not see why living quarters of private school teachers should be exempted from taxation when public school teachers and all householders had to pay property tax.

Ald. Arthur Dowell pointed out that parsonages and caretakers' living quarters in churches are taxed.

YEAR-TO-YEAR

Committee was informed that several teacherages were exempted from taxation this year, but Mayor Percy Scurrell said the exemptions can only be made on a year-to-year basis and council could refuse the exemptions next year.

Dealing with the tennis club's application, the mayor said:

"It isn't fair to place the burden on the householder and the business property, which is what happens when you exempt clubs. We just can't afford it and I don't think it's right."

"If anyone wants a private club to play some game, they should pay their own way instead of being subsidized by the city," he said.

POPE PLEDGES PEACE CAUSE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John XXIII pledged today to work for a just and brotherly peace and true freedom among peoples during his reign.

The Pontiff was addressing representatives of 54 countries and five international organizations in the Vatican. They were the official foreign representatives at his coronation.

The Pope recalled that his predecessor, Pius XII, had devoted his pontificate to peace in the world. He said he would follow his example.

'Flower Park' Project Approved in Saanich

Start Next Year At Mayfair Site

A large and colorful rhododendron and azalea park, the first of its kind in Canada, will be started in Saanich next year.

Saanich parks committee Tuesday approved a proposal to set aside Mayfair Park for development into a rhododendron park.

The proposal was made by a Victoria Arboretum Society delegation consisting of Dr. Adam Szczawinski, curator of botany, Provincial Museum, Dr. Stewart Holland and J. E. Underhill.

Parks committee chairman Charles Nelles said the 8½ acre park will also include a playlot, but the main portion will be reserved for the showy ornamental shrubs.

Playfair Park is situated in the Tattersall area east of Quadra Street.

Dr. Szczawinski said the society would co-operate with the municipality in developing the park.

PLANT 6,000

"We will provide rhododendrons which Victoria gardeners never knew existed," he said. "We plan to plant at least 6,000 rhododendrons representing some 600 species collected from all parts of the world."

The shrubs, he said, would be provided by the society, various plant collectors and organizations.

The park, he added, would mark the first step towards establishing a national arboretum in Saanich.

It was the society's hope, he said, that an arboretum can eventually be established in the Beaver-Elk Lake area with the federal and provincial governments co-operating in its development.

The Playfair Park, he said, would become a show piece.

AMALGAMATION REPORT

This is the seventh of 19 parts presenting the text of a report made by Dr. J. J. Deutsch to a Victoria-Saanich committee in which amalgamation of the two municipalities was recommended. The report is being printed in a serial form in the interests of voters who may cast ballots on the question.

The Financial Implications of Amalgamation:

Having analyzed the financial positions of the two municipalities in the recent past, and having examined their prospective financial positions over the next five years, the committee attempted to portray the financial position of the united municipality which would result if amalgamation were carried out.

Before endeavoring to describe the financial implications of such an event, it is necessary to consider the way in which the administrative organizations in the two municipalities could be integrated and, also, the manner in which differing policies regarding municipal services could be made uniform.

Personnel Factor: With regard to administrative integration, the committee has assumed that neither the municipal authorities or the public would wish to deprive the existing full-time employees of the two municipalities of their employment security or to affect unfavorably their existing rates of remuneration and benefits.

Consequently the committee suggests that if amalgamation takes place that all existing full-time employees of both municipalities who wish it be taken over by the united municipality at their prevailing rates of remuneration and benefits.

The over-staffing which might result would not, in fact, be serious because in the initial stages the process of integration would itself entail a good deal of extra work. Also, during this process of integration it would be wise to retain the local knowledge of the existing employees.

After the initial period the over-staffing could be taken care of relatively quickly through a strict policy of no-hiring until normal separations, turnover, and retirements have reduced the staff to the appropriate size. This is the general principle which is suggested.

The committee recognizes that there is another problem concerning the particular positions, ranks and precise duties of the two groups of existing officials in a single organization.

The committee has not had time to examine this aspect closely. In any case, these questions do not arise until and until amalgamation is decided upon, in which event these matters would have to be considered in detail.

SAANICH FIRE

'Jezebel' Rescued—By A Whisker

By AB KENT

A goat is the central figure of this story and the heroine is the Saanich mother who entered a blazing shed to rescue the animal Tuesday.

Jezebel, a milk goat kept by the Garry Cue family at 4072 Wilkinson, emerged from the flames intact even to her modest goatie.

The winter feed for goat and a cow also kept on the premises went up with the shed, all three tons of it in hay and oats.

Mrs. Betty Cue and her friend Mrs. Pat Morberg, 4207 Glanford, who was visiting with her little boy, were in the Cue kitchen when Mrs. Morberg glanced out the window about 1:15 p.m. and saw the shed aflame.

"The kids!" they both cried, meaning their children Larry Cue, 5, and Steven Morberg, 4. Both women dashed from the kitchen and both fell on their faces on the slippery slope leading to the shed behind the house.

But the children were playing in a field some distance from the shed, safe and sound.

TETHERED INSIDE
Suddenly Mrs. Cue remembered Jezebel tethered inside the shed and unable to get out without help.

Mrs. Cue dashed in, the smoke and flames billowing and crackling around her head, untied Jezebel and ran back outside flushed and breathless.

"I was never so scared in my life," she said.

COMBUSTION
"We thought it was the kids. We thought they were in the shed..."

Firemen from the Saanich department were three hours wetting down the blaze, believed started by spontaneous combustion in the hay.

Strike Talks Set By Shipyard Men

British Columbia's 2,600 shipyard workers, faced with the companies' refusal to reopen negotiations in a contract dispute, are considering going on strike.

A meeting to discuss a strike vote has been called by representatives of 22 shipyard unions, to be held in Vancouver later this week.

Officials of the province's four major shipyards refused Tuesday to continue talks with the unions on pay and other contract issues.

J. W. Hudson, chairman of the B.C. Shipbuilders Federation, charged the workers were pricing themselves out of jobs and the shipyards out of business, "and the federation (which represents the four yards) is not prepared to negotiate further."

78% AGAINST

The 22 unions earlier rejected by a 78 per cent vote a conciliation officer's settlement proposal of a 6 per cent pay increase over the next two years.

All four shipyards accepted the recommendation, although they are against any pay boost. Officials said they accepted the 6 per cent recommendation to "maintain continuity of employment."

Sam Jenkins, a spokesman for the Marine Workers and

MORE LAYOFFS AT SHIPYARD THIS WEEK

While wage negotiations are at a standstill between shipyards and unions, the work force at Victoria Machinery Depot continues to diminish.

Following laying-off of 25 men last week, yard general manager H. S. Hammill said today another "few, maybe a dozen" will be released this week.

"We are going further and further downhill," he said, "and we haven't touched bottom yet."

Boilermakers' Industrial Union, told The Times today Mr. Hudson's statement that workers' pay demands were pricing the shipyards out of business was "untrue and just plain misleading."

"During the royal commission on Canada's coastal trade (1955) a shipyards' representative admitted that shipbuilders' production on the west coast was so much higher than that on the east coast that it cancelled any differential in wages."

HIGH QUALITY

"Former trade and commerce minister C. D. Howe himself said western shipyard workers were producing high-quality work."

Mr. Jenkins said one B.C. shipyard (Burrard) once asked its workers to drop a demand for more pay so it would win a French government contract.

"Later we discovered the yard made a net profit of $3,500,000, and there have been no more French contracts."

Mr. Hudson claimed rates are 30 per cent lower in east coast shipyards.

The unions here want a 12½ per cent hike, plus other contract changes. They have said a strike is "the last thing we want" and that they would prefer to negotiate.

GAZES FOR GEISHAS

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been thinking about what is wrong with the world, and I have come to a conclusion.

What is wrong with the world is, too many people are in the wrong line of work.

Or possibly it is that not enough people are in the right line of work.

Now, this conclusion I have arrived at it is not a difficult conclusion to reach.

Any person can come to the same conclusion simply by listening to people talking about the lines of work they are in.

Hardly anybody has a kind word to say for the way in which he earns his living.

Bricklayers are forever telling of the difficulties encountered in laying bricks. Poultry farmers will spend hours telling you how hard it is to get hens to lay eggs. Hotel managers moan about the trouble involved in managing hotels. The corner store owner says the supermarkets are driving them out of business, and the supermarket operator says how can he make a living at these prices?

The doctor moans about being awakened in the middle of the night, and the lawyer moans because the judge didn't stay awake in the middle of his summation.

The newspaper photographer goes to great lengths to avoid taking photographs, and writers of all descriptions are apt to scream and break into a cold sweat at the sight of a typewriter.

I am sure you'll agree with me that every farmer you know would rather be an insurance salesman, and every stockbroker would be happier operating a tourist resort.

There is no doubt about it, what is wrong with the world is, nearly everybody is in the wrong line of work.

That is my conclusion, but please do not ask me for a solution.

Finding a solution would involve thinking, and that isn't my line of work.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Rod Woods, 19, of 415 Francis, and Robert Malcolm, 20, of 1425 Fernwood, each were fined $15 in city police court today when they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

Woods told the court he met a man on the street who said he felt sick and asked Woods to carry a case of beer to a taxi-stand for him. "Naturally I helped him," Woods said.

Negotiations for a site for a new Oak Bay liquor store are still underway, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Tuesday. He felt the new store would be similar to the new LCCB store which opens Nov. 13 at Esquimalt.

Two boat ramps are being planned, city public works committee was told by city engineer James Garnett. He said one would be at Clover Point and the other near Fisherman's Wharf. Application for Capital Improvement District Commission grants for the ramps will be made.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Health Minister Eric Martin has said hospital costs have increased 175 per cent in the last 10 years. What percentage was due to improved hospital facilities and how much to salaries and wages?

—Grateful Patient.

A. The two are interrelated. The 175 per cent increase is due to increase in numbers of beds, plus increase in numbers of employees, plus wage increases for employees. There has been a 40 per cent bed increase, and a 225 per cent wage increase, which includes wages for an 84 per cent increase in employee numbers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times," Editor, Question and Answer will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to answer questions or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to pass value on old crimes, slanders or antiquities. These should be submitted to dealers.

City council public works committee Tuesday recommended a ban on all parking between 4 and 5:30 p.m. on the south side of Yates between Government and Broad to relieve rush-hour congestion. It also approved a recommendation that loading zones on Fort, between Cook and Douglas, be increased in size, and angle loading be prohibited.

Canadian Westinghouse Supply Co. bid for 130 street luminaires at $52.25 each was accepted by public works committee.

Although one of four identical bids for the contract, which prompted a city council decision to refer the tenders to the anti-combines division, the company's bid was accepted when committee was told it was offering an improved 1959 type of street light.

The heads of two pilfered parking meters were picked up by city police near Johnson and Cormorant at 11 p.m. Tuesday after a witness said he saw three youths tampering with meters.

William C. Rees, 460 East Burnside, was fined $250 in city police court today when he was found guilty of an impaired driving charge. Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded Rees to next Wednesday for a probation report on the matter of driver's licence suspension.

George Swinton, associate professor of the Fine Arts Department, University of Manitoba, will give two lectures here Monday.

At 12:30 p.m. he will speak on the "Myth of Philoctetes" at Victoria College. At 8:30 p.m. he will be at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and he will discuss "Gold and Tinsel," and attempt to distinguish between good painting and that which merely seems good.

Canadian National Railways Veterans' Association will meet at 2 p.m. Friday in Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street.

RECONNAISSANCE PARTY for First Battalion, PPCL, exercise designed to "toughen soldiers under adverse conditions" left Victoria today. Later in month about 700 men will hike across mountainous northern

The Versatile Hostess Sometimes Serves Snails!

By PENNY SAVER

Guests may or may not go for 'em but a hostess who wishes to be different might try serving snails at her next cocktail party.

Honestly, they are delicious and, if topped with garlic butter and served in the shells hot from the oven, they'd most likely be a hit even with those people who say, "won't touch them!"

Packed in jars and imported from Denmark, the snails (shells and all) are priced at $1.50.

Antipasto is an Italian name for a combination of different kinds of hors d'oeuvres. And one shop in town is displaying the delicacy in a selection of olives, pickles, mackerel, carrots, gherkins, turnips, cauliflower, artichokes, mushrooms, fennel, celery, pimentos, onions, olive oil, tomato sauce, sugar and spices, all in a flat glass container ready to serve at your next early-evening party. The antipasto starts in price at 49 cents.

Smoked anchovy paste is good at any social gathering especially when its spread thinly on tiny pieces of brown toast or on little crackers. It's a tasty delicacy and one that is a wee bit different. Packed in Italy the paste is 43 cents a tin.

Olives stuffed with almonds and pimentos also hit the "little bit different" list. Tall slim bottles are selling at 49 cents each.

Pineapple sticks can be chopped up into bite sizes or kept in their original six-inch length for serving alone or atop crackers. Jars of the fruit are price tagged at 49 cents each.

I had so many calls about the little "good fortune" cakes I told you about a year ago I'm going to mention them again. Packed in the Orient, the cakes hold in their hollowed centres pieces of paper with fortunes written on them. These fortune cakes come in cellophane bags at 45 cents each.

Maybe you're giving a cocktail party? If so, then call me at EV 2-3131. I know where there are loads of specialties at reasonable prices.

DEAR ABBY...

You're Being Taken for a Ride!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife gets me sore. When I ask her if she wants to go out she says she would love to, but she has nothing to wear. I go to her clothes closet and I see no less than 30 dresses hanging there and still she tells me she has nothing to wear! I buy one suit a year, and I have plenty to wear. What's the answer? HACK DRIVER.

DEAR DRIVER: Your wife means she has nothing NEW to wear. But this excuse is no longer legitimate because now the older a lady's dress is, the newer it looks.

DEAR ABBY: For almost two years I have been happily married to a wonderful man. His parents treat me like their own daughter, but this one thing bothers me. My husband was married and divorced before I met him. His mother has picture albums which she shows to everyone when she has company. There are many pictures of my husband and his wife in this album. Some are cheek-to-cheek on the beach in affectionate poses. This hurts me very much. My in-laws have no use for this woman now so why do they keep her pictures in the book? About a year ago I asked my mother-in-law to remove the pictures and she said it would ruin her book. I think if she really loved me she would get rid of the pictures. Should I mention it again? It bothers me terribly.

DEAR HURT: Take some new pictures of your husband and yourself and be sure they are the same size as those you'd like replaced. Tell your mother-in-law you will gladly replace the pictures without ruining her book.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who spends $120 on a reducing course for herself and refuses to help her own sister out with a loan for the grocery bill?

DISGUSTED. DEAR DISGUSTED: She must be penny wise and pound foolish.

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column about the two 79's taking a trip together gave me food for thought. I am a widow and not quite 79, but I am over 60. Last year it happened to be convenient for me to attend a family celebration with a gentleman widower remotely related through in-laws. We stayed in separate hotels, not to be discreet but because the hotels were crowded. I found it much nicer than being tied to an older woman night and day. Last week I heard about a cruise which sounded inviting. He called me long-distance on business, and I asked him if he would be interested in the cruise. He said it sounded fine. I have no children and to heck with gossip, but he has children and grandchildren.

dren and grandchildren. Do you suppose they would take exception if he went on such a cruise? They might hesitate to criticize him to his face.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Most of my readers know what I think about age consciousness—I believe it ages more women than years ever do. I want to print part of a dynamic and amusing letter which came recently from a reader.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: I am 46 and never even thought about my age until recently when I had a shattering experience with a college registrar.

"I had asked how many hours I needed to qualify for my degree. I was rewarded with a fishy stare and the comment, 'After all, Madame, you are 45. Why do you want a BA degree?'"

"I work full time, maintain a home for my family, design and make most of my clothes and my daughter's, and am active in community affairs. I have frequently applied for positions in order to better my situation. The employer or personnel director usually fixes his or her eyes on a spot on the wall just above my head and does not listen to a word I say. When will the individual be considered on his own merits and not arbitrarily shelved at the age of 40?"

"I know some women who are old at 30. I know one child of 13 who is already old. I am convinced that age has no relation to calendar years."

All I can say to that is "Amen!"

The registrar is certainly old-fashioned and has not kept up with the times. Adult education is becoming an important part of so many schools.

I long ago became convinced that the woman who thinks in terms of years rather than life actually and literally ages much more rapidly physically than the one who is so busy enjoying life that the thought of age seldom, if ever, occurs to her.

Yes, with one pair of glasses trying to do the work of several pairs required to do a good job, you are like unto the lady with but one dress. It might be fine for the kitchen but unsuitable elsewhere. For your work, for play, for business and for the formal occasion, you need the proper glasses to see well and look your best. COURTENAY (CP) — Replacement of a narrow steel bridge spanning the Courtenay River is a probability in 1959, city council learned Monday.

In a letter sent last week, Highways Minister Gagliardi told Mayor W. C. Moore that replacement of the Courtenay River bridge is included in 1959 estimates.

"While I am unable to make a definite commitment at this time," Mr. Gagliardi said, "we will anticipate doing the job next year, and I think it very likely that it will be carried out."

Councillors took the opportunity to complain that recent resurfacing of the bridge has made it more dangerous to negotiate than before.

CANDIDATE for election to Nanaimo city council in December will be George Molecey, chairman of the city's centennial committee. Other newcomers will be Jack Parker, teacher, and Douglas Greer, lawyer. They will contest seats of retiring aldermen P. J. Piper, Ed Blackburn and George Bryce.

TRADITION PRESERVED

'Nanaimo Night' For Guy Fawkes

NANAIMO (CP) — Believed alone among the cities of Canada, Nanaimo preserves the Guy Fawkes Day tradition, brought to the city from Britain by the city's first settlers more than 100 years ago.

Each Nov. 5, at dusk, scores of bonfires spring up. While the "Guy" tradition is disappearing, an unidentified effigy hangs over some of the fires.

Many of those who plan the fires and enjoy the hot dogs and fireworks that go with them are unaware of the origin of the custom. It is known now as Nanaimo Night. Children spend weeks preparing for it, gathering fuel for monster blazes.

BACK TO 1605

The observance recalls the discovery Nov. 5, 1605, of Guy Fawkes standing with lighted torch beside barrels of gunpowder in the cellars of the House of Commons in London, preparing to set off an explosion that would have eliminated King James I and both Houses of Parliament.

The Guy Fawkes Day tradition was introduced to Nanaimo in 1851 by passengers of the brig Harpooner—English miners who came here to work coal deposits which had just been found. The mines have since closed.

Poppy Taggers Out Thursday

$5 MILLION, 20 YEARS

Giant Parking
Plan for City

By JOHN MIKA

A $5,000,000 20-year development program to provide 11 downtown off-street parking sites for more than 3,000 cars without using a cent of tax money was presented Tuesday afternoon by the city engineering department.

First phase of the program, providing space for 1,000 cars at a cost of $1,785,000 could be completed within two years if all goes well, half of it by Christmas next year.

The plan will go to next week's city council meeting with recommendations to prepare the way for launching of the first phase.

The developments would include ground level sites—the first on the present main fire-hall property—and four-storey parking garages—the first on View between Douglas and Blanshard.

The whole program could be financed entirely from parking revenues and doubling the present street parking meter rates.

Some streets would be closed to provide pedestrian shopping malls and eventually the Causeway would be widened by earth fill for an extension of Wharf Street as a truck route to James Bay area.

The program, presented by city engineer James Garnett to a joint meeting of public works committee and businessmen, would "revitalize and beautify" the downtown shopping area.

A net gain of more than 2,000 parking spaces over present facilities would be achieved by the total program. New spaces, enlargement of some present facilities and loss of others would be involved.

Four-Tier Garage for 350 Cars

First parking garage—a four-tier ramp facility for 350 cars—would straddle View Street off Blanshard. The street would be closed on both sides of Douglas, which would be the only road cutting through an area of five city blocks.

Pedestrian shopping malls would run from the parking garage down to Douglas and from Douglas down to Broad, where a short pedestrian mall would stretch along Broad.

from View halfway to Fort. Total cost of the development would be $875,000, including $290,000 for the parking garage and $200,000 for erection of new stores to replace those torn down. The latter amount would be self-liquidating.

Car access to the garage would be off Blanshard with pedestrian malls and arcades giving access to Fort, Yates, Douglas and Broad.

Democrats
Rout GOP

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democratic Party, riding a wave of popular support that rivalled Dwight D. Eisenhower's Republican presidential victory six years ago, has taken over control of both Houses of the United States Congress in its greatest strength since the Roosevelt era.

With all of Tuesday's contests for one-third of the Senate seats decided this morning, the Democrats had the heaviest representation in the Upper House since Franklin D. Roosevelt won his third term in 1940.

In the lower House of Representatives they tacked almost 100 seats to their majority of 35 in the outgoing House, all of whose 435 seats were up for renewal.

The pattern was followed in the voting for the governorships of 33 states with New York a notable exception, where Nelson Rockefeller beat Governor Averell Harriman of the Democrats, in a "battle of the millionaires."

But the Democratic sweep

brought down Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland in California, running for governor, and former governor Goodwin Knight, running for senator.

Closely linked to some partisan issues were right-to-work referendums outlawing compulsory union shops in six states—all except Kansas defeated the measures.

The defeat of the president's party put on record Eisenhower's steady decline in influence since he won personal victory in 1956 for his second term but failed then to carry his party to power in the houses of Congress.

But as Eisenhower's star was setting, Republicans got a glimmer of hope from Rockefeller's personal victory.

Rockefeller for President?

Rockefeller's down-to-earth campaigning in New York City upset the traditional Democratic pattern of voting in the country's largest metropolis as it knocked the Democrats out of control of the most populous state and brought immediate speculation that the Republicans may seize upon Rockefeller as a popular figure to lead them in the next battle for the presidency in 1960.

Eisenhower himself cannot by law run for a third term, and in view of the near-record vote hailed by the Democrats as a vote of non-confidence in his administration, Vice-President Richard Nixon may find the going rough to get the Republican nomination for the top office two years from now.

Adlai Stevenson, twice defeated by Eisenhower, as the Democrats' presidential candidate, hailed the result as a mandate for the opposition party "to produce thoughtful, creative leadership in a dangerous time."

He attributed the Democratic victory in the congressional and state governorship contests as reflecting public misgiving about Republican leadership at home and abroad, the high cost of living and "corruption, or at least that some ethical standards were not fulfilled."

This last was one of the few references in the cam-

Guess th' Chamber o' Commerce won't mind grass growin' in th' streets long's it's on purpose.
Th' U.S. voters seem t' hev said nix on Nixon.

A STAR IS BORN . . .

Only real bright spot for shattered Republicans in Tuesday's election was terrific victory of Nelson Rockefeller as governor of New York over Averell Harriman in battle of millionaires.

. . . ANOTHER ECLIPSED

Biggest "gun" to fall victim to Democratic sweep was Republican Senate leader William F. Knowland, sad here after defeat in California governorship race. (AP Wirephotos.)

ELECTION REACTION

Spend Advocates Supported — Ike

From Times News Services
Here's the reaction from the U.S. and Europe on the big Democratic victory at the polls Tuesday:

President Eisenhower: The electorate obviously voted for spending advocates in giving the Democrats greater control.

He called any trend toward bigger federal spending a dangerous one.

He emphatically replied "not at all" when asked whether he expects to have additional trouble during the next two years in dealing with Congress.

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon: "Republicans worked for two months. Our opponents worked for two years. The result was inevitable."

On Four Others

VANCOUVER (CP)—Robert E. Sommers, one-time B.C. cabinet minister, was convicted by an Assize Court jury today on 5 charges of bribery, but the jury disagreed on two others. He had already been convicted of conspiracy by the same jury.

The jury of nine men and three women also found timber brokerage executive H. W. Gray guilty of eight counts of bribery but disagreed on two other counts against him.

Gray is the man for whom Sommers is alleged to have collected bribes in return for favors in the issuance of forest management licences. Both were convicted of conspiracy by this same jury last Saturday evening after more than 50 hours of deliberation.

The multi-million-dollar timber organization of B.C. Forest Products Limited, which the jury found not guilty of conspiracy Saturday, was acquitted on five out of six charges of bribery.

DISAGREEMENT

The jury disagreed on the other count, which involved some $1,300, the company was said to have paid for Sommers' travel expenses on an eastern trip in November, 1953.

In the case of the 54-year-old timber engineer Charles D. Schultz and his company of the same name, on which the jury could not agree on conspiracy last Saturday, the jury found him not guilty on four out of nine bribery counts but again disagreed on the other five.

SAME DECISION

In the case of his timber engineering firm they made the same decision—not guilty on four counts with a disagreement on five.

The jury found John Gray not guilty on two counts of bribery but failed to agree on two others, just as it failed to agree in its Saturday verdict on the conspiracy count against him.

In the case of Wilson Gray's firm, Pacific Coast Services Limited, the jury returned eight guilty verdicts and one disagreement. In the case of the Pacific subsidiary, Evergreen Lumber Sales, the jury convicted it on two bribery counts and disagreed on another.

The courtroom was jammed with persons standing at the door listening to the verdicts. Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson set 2 p.m. Thursday for the hearing of argument with respect to the sentences of those convicted.

The maximum sentences to which they can be liable is subject to legal interpretation between the old and the new Criminal Codes of Canada and could run anywhere from one to five years on each count.

JURY COMPLIMENTED

The judge, in an unusual pronouncement, said the jury had done such a tremendous job in the complex 79-day trial that he was going to recommend to the government that they be given a substantial grant, even if it took special legislation.

Inviting the jurors to his chambers afterwards—"So I can shake your hands"—he said that no matter what they got it could never repay them for what they had gone through.

In all the jury this afternoon delivered verdicts on 57 different indictments directed against the various accused and some covering the same offences.

When the verdict was rendered it ended the windup of Canada's longest criminal trial after 79 days of actual sitting since it opened May 1.

Leaders Talk World Trade,
NATO Problems

PARIS (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and French Premier Charles de Gaulle met for the first time today.

They held wide-ranging discussions on world problems, including the general's plan for a reorganization of NATO.

A communique said afterwards that "they evoked, in the spirit of old and profound friendship and the alliance which unites the two countries, the present great problems of the world."

A French spokesman said later that the two leaders concentrated on two points:

—De Gaulle's letter to President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan allegedly suggesting a Franco-American-British "triumvirate" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

—The British-backed plan for a European free trade area, which French opposition has nearly wrecked.

Informed sources had said earlier that Diefenbaker would tell de Gaulle that the general's proposal was unacceptable to Canada, which is also a member of NATO.

The sources had said that Canada was not in favor of an actual reorganization of NATO machinery as much as increased use of what already exists.

DEMOCRATS

California, had switched candidacies.

Knowland won a victory in the party primary earlier this year which determined the Republican candidate for the governor's chair, contending that the state was threatened with "labor-boss rule." Knight, deprived of the chance to run again for governor, then tried for the Senate seat vacated by Knowland.

Labor was also an issue in Michigan, where Democratic Governor G. Mennen Williams campaigned on the Republican's recession record in the automobile industry's centre, and won a record sixth consecutive term, even though the worst of the American industrial slump appears over now.

The "right to work" proposals were so labelled by their supporters because they would make illegal compulsory union membership in order to hold jobs under labor contracts.

Heavily industrialized Ohio swamped the measure and the proposal was downed handily in California, Washington and Colorado. Idaho voters turned it down by a narrow margin and only Kansas approved the ban on union shops.

Besides Kansas, 17 other states, mostly in the South, have approved such legislation.

Personality factors were prominent in the national voting. Republican stalwart John W. Bricker lost his Senate seat in a Democratic landslide in Ohio, but his fellow old-guard rightwinger, Senator Barry Goldwater, rode roughshod over his Democratic opponent in Arizona in a reversal of the national trend.

On the Democratic side, prominent winners were Senators John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri, both being talked up as hopefuls for the next presidential campaign.

The Republicans fared best in the more conservative eastern states despite their shocking congressional defeat in Vermont. They gained the Rhode Island governorship besides that of New York and preserved Senate seats in Vermont, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. But in the western farm belt they lost influence; with only Nebraska and North Dakota remaining as islands of Republicanism in the Plains states.

They held out locally in Arizona, Idaho, Oregon and Wyoming against the Democratic landslide that rumbled to the Pacific coast.

Tunis Claims Invasion By French

TUNIS (Reuters)—Tunisian sources said tonight French forces estimated at two regiments and supported by tanks have entered Tunisian territory from Algeria in the Bou Jaber frontier area.

Sadok Mokkadem, Tunisian secretary of state for foreign affairs, made a strong protest to the French embassy here against "the violation of national soil by French ground forces," the sources said.

The sources said earlier that the Tunisian frontier village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef had been under mortar fire.

Ten Thousand Police Battle Mob in Tokyo

TOKYO (Reuters)—Ten thousand police tonight tried to restrain milling masses of demonstrators as they snaked through Tokyo in protest against a government bill to increase police powers.

Police reinforcements swarmed into the capital to keep order. It was one of the city's biggest demonstrations since the end of the war.

OTTAWA GIVES $100,000 TO DISASTER FUND

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to donate $100,000 to the Springhill, N.S., disaster fund, Acting Prime Minister Green announced after a cabinet meeting today.

He told reporters that aside from this contribution, the central administration will co-operate with the Nova Scotia government to consider what other federal aid should be provided for the "people who acted so courageously in this tragedy."

WASHINGTON TIMBER PRACTICES ATTACKED

OLYMPIA (AP)—Washington's timber management practices came under fire Tuesday from state representative Gene Neva, Aberdeen Democrat.

Neva charged that the state is losing 47 per cent of its possible revenue from timber sales because of low appraisals.

He contended that the Department of Natural Resources employs about 200 persons to do the work 70 employees were doing before timber and land functions were consolidated.

Neva also claimed that the department requires too large deposits from timber purchasers, has forced timber sales on a depressed lumber market and put up timber for sale in tracts too large for small operators to bid on.

Witnesses Sought In Hit-Run Injury

Witnesses to hit-run traffic accident on Cook Street Sunday night are sought by city police, in an effort to track down the fugitive motorist.

Mrs. Elizabeth Traill, 81, of 1024 Pendergast, is in "good" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple injuries and a broken left leg.

The woman was in collision with a car as she attempted to cross between Sutlej and Oxford at 3:45 p.m.

Driver of the car got out to look at her lying in the street, then drove from the scene. He was chased by another motorist.

After forcing the fleeing car to the curb on Moss near Richardson, 11 blocks away, motorist Harry Morris, 1211 Chapman, chased its driver on foot between two houses but lost sight of him in the dark.

Police located the car's registered owner Monday, but were no closer to identifying its driver today.

Rockefeller Upset Co-Millionaire

NEW YORK (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller's election as governor by a majority of more than 500,000 votes skyrocketed him today as a possibility for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

The multi-millionaire's overwhelming victory over wealthy Democratic Governor Averell Harriman stood out particularly because of its contrast with Republican defeats in other states.

It also appeared to knock out whatever chance Harriman may have had for the Democratic presidential nomination two years hence. Harriman had sought the nod in 1952 and 1956.

The campaign spearheaded by Rockefeller also led to election of Republican representative Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester as U.S. senator.

Keating, regarded as an under-dog throughout the campaign, defeated Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan for the office Republican Senator Irving M. Ives is vacating for reasons of health.

Returns from 11,510 of 11,525 election districts gave: Rockefeller 3,115,186; Harriman 2,559,821.

Rockefeller has insisted—and repeated today—that he is not interested in 1960 possibilities and that he has "no other intention" than to serve his four-year term as governor.

Rockefeller told an early-morning press conference he intends to lead the Republican party in New York state and he expects to head the state delegation to the next Republican national convention.

Rockefeller and his backers went on the theory from the outset that New York voters never would elect a so-called conservative.

Like Harriman, he spoke out against "right-to-work" laws, in favor of continued controls on rents and against any increase in New York's 15-cent subway fare.

Harriman ran with the Liberal party as well as the Democratic party nomination.

Ottawa Sees U.S. Vote 'Policy Protest'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times' Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Outcome of the United States voting is interpreted here as a "dissatisfaction" with things as they are in that country, both in the economic and foreign policy fields.

Domestically the American voter was reacting against unemployment and the recession. In the foreign policy field he was apparently casting a vote against the Dulles "brink of war" policies.

How the election will affect Canada is difficult to assess, government sources said. They doubted that there would be little immediate reaction as far as this country was concerned.

The sweeping victory for the Democrats, however, means that it will be easier for the Democrats in Congress to get their ideas through that House.

A two-thirds vote in both the Congress and Senate is required to override the presidential veto. The Canadian government was watching with interest to see if the Democrats would roll up a sufficient majority to be able to override the veto. It was expected that the results in Alaska will play an important role because the Democrats might need representation from that new state in order to have sufficient numbers to beat the veto.

Because this was a mid-term election, however, authorities here did not look for any major changes in American policy.

A suggestion that because the Democrats are traditionally a low-tariff group, there might be an easing in trade restrictions is conceded as a possibility. But the southern Democrats are becoming high tariff in their outlook with the development of industry in the south and changes in cotton markets.

Their high-tariff ideas would offset the low-tariff approach of the northern Democrats. But traders in this country, who are incurably optimistic, are hopeful that the election outcome will strengthen Eisenhower in his stand against rabid Republicans who want more protection for American industry.

In a mid-term election domestic issues decide the outcome rather than questions of foreign policy. In this election Canadian authorities believe that unemployment and the recession had the biggest impact. The voters went out to register discontent with those economic conditions, knowing that their vote would not overthrow the administration.

President Eisenhower in the past has enjoyed the support of the large vote in the United States of those who want no war and no policies that might lead to war. There are indications that Republicans with Mr. Dulles' "brinkmanship" may have lost that vote, leading to the big victories for the Democrats.

Mr. Dulles will continue in charge of American foreign policy under President Eisenhower and as a consequence Canadians look for no great change in that policy.

There may be a slight softening in the United States antagonism to Red China, as a result of the elections. However, it was not expected to go so far as a move towards recognition. But the reaction of the American voter towards the U.S. position in the Formosa Straits might bring about a change in the administration's readiness to support Chiang Kai-Shek in his risky gamble with the Reds.

There is some worry in agricultural quarters here that the new American Congress might swing away from the anti-subsidy policies that the Eisenhower administration has been seeking to put across. Should this take place it could lead to increased American surpluses and more trouble for Canada in disposing of her surpluses.

PARKING

Parking rate recommended for the tiered garages was 10 cents for the first hour.

But Mr. Garnett said he expected most shoppers would not have to pay anything for the parking because many stores probably would pay parking tickets of their customers. This could be done by stores stamping the tickets and paying for them when billed.

To make certain the garages would be used fully, street meter rates would have to be increased to the same charge.

This would involve increasing all meter rates to five cents per half-hour. One-hour meters would still be used. Most meter rates are set at five cents per hour now.

Present meter revenues average more than $100,000 annually.

By doubling the revenue, the entire offstreet parking program could be financed without using any of the city's present revenue.

The street meter increase, recommended to coincide with opening of the View Street garage, would be more than adequate to pay the cost of the initial development over a period of 15 years.

Surplus from the meter rates and the revenues from the parking garage would be used to finance all the succeeding developments.

Money to start the View Street garage could be entirely borrowed on the strength of a decision to raise the street meter rates.

Here's how a motorist would use the garage:

Driving into it off Blanshard, he would be given a ticket stub and assigned space by an attendant; the motorist would park, walk out and do his shopping along the pedestrian mall; and, returning, he would present his ticket and pay the charge, unless one of the stores had stamped it, pick up his car and drive off.

Although the additional car spaces provided by the View Street garage would total only about 150, when present street and private parking lot spaces in the area are eliminated, the garage revenue would provide a key source of financing for the rest of the program.

This vehicle operation cost would be eliminated, thus cancelling out the higher meter cost that would make offstreet parking garages possible, because there would be fewer cars searching for street parking.

Immediate reaction by public works committee and about 15 members of the Downtown Business Association at the meeting was generally favorable to the principles of the program.

William Clark, president of the merchants' group, told the committee "you are doing what we hoped would happen... we are very happy you have gone this far."

Other members of the association praised the engineering department and the committee for taking action in trying to solve the parking problem.

However, although they indicated they favored the general outline of the program, most reserved specific comments until they had time to study all the proposals in detail.

Later, Mr. Clark questioned whether meter rates should be increased. He also suggested a "pigeon-hole" type of parking garage, which would use elevators to shunt cars into parking spaces, would be able to pay for itself.

Earlier, Mr. Garnett said the pigeon-hole type of garage was discarded in planning because it is the most costly type of parking facility. He also said most parking garages on the continent are ramp types.

G. Conway Parrott, president of the chamber of commerce, said any program to increase downtown parking facilities should be fully explored.

Mr. Garnett told the committee that the city should retain direct control of the program, through his department and a Downtown Business Association committee, under supervision of council. This would ensure that parking projects would be located where they would do the most good for the whole business area.

He added that the program was planned to meet not only present needs, but those that might arise if the city ever converted downtown streets for one-way traffic, constructed a heliport or saw other developments take shape that would affect traffic flow.

"The idea is to prevent erection of offstreet parking development that is expensive today and useless tomorrow," he said.

criticism of the proposal to raise parking meter rates, pointed out that it costs motorists about five cents to drive around a block once in search of a parking spot, a frequent occurrence at present.

Vacation By Hussein Not 'Alarm'

Springhill Buries Her Dead

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—The sun shone brightly on Springhill Tuesday.

The air was still. Smoke rose straight up from chimneys. Peace seemed everywhere.

But there was no peace. It was the 12th day. Springhill still buried her dead.

On the green lawns of the cemetery halfway down the hill, grave-diggers worked in relays. Fresh mounds of earth scarred the far slope.

A police car led a funeral cortege down the hill. There were two hearses. The Embree brothers, they said... Eleven funerals Monday, seven Thursday. Meanwhile recovery of nine bodies from the crushed No. 2 coal mine continued slowly and painfully today.

One hundred men have been saved. The known death toll is 74.

And over on the other side of the hill, out of sight of the cemetery, traffic moved as usual, but people stood in little groups on the corners, talking.

A man with greying hair and a flushed face asked another man:

"Why does God let such things happen?"

In the cemetery the grave-diggers worked on. Another funeral moved through the gates.

Downtown, flags flew at half-staff on the Miners' Hall.

Contingency Fund Used to Cover Relief Payments

City welfare committee Monday recommended transfer of $1,814 from contingency fund to cover the city's share of a $98,020 over-expenditure on 1953 relief estimates.

Unexpected unemployment on a "greater magnitude than we have experienced during the postwar years" was responsible for the over-expenditure, city comptroller Dennis Young reported to the committee.

City manager C. C. Wyatt stressed that the $1,814 transfer would not result in any deficit or increase in taxes.

Here Are Two Phases

The offstreet parking program planned by city traffic engineer Norman Worsley and architect-planner Roderick Clack, has two phases.

First phase, taking about two years to complete at an approximate cost of $2,000,000 would:

1. Establish a four-tier parking garage for 350 cars on View, between Douglas and Blanshard;

2. Establish a four-tiered parking garage for 200 cars on the east side of Government, between Johnson and Yates;

3. Redevelop the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. parking garage to hold 300 cars;

4. Establish a ground level parking lot for 110 cars on the present main firehall site initially, and a garage for 500 cars if required by future needs.

Second phase of the program, costing about $3,000,000 and probably spanning about 18 years, would meet all future needs anticipated by establishing offstreet parking for:

1. 350 cars on property lying east of RCMP headquarters, between Courtney and Broughton;

2. 500 cars on increased lot at Hudson's Bay Co.

3. 100 cars on fill fronting Causeway.

4. 200 cars on a development near the present Court House.

5. 350 cars on property west of Mc & Me on Government Street.

6. 350 cars on property between Blanshard, Douglas, Johnson and Pandora.

7. 50 cars on property occupied by C and C Taxi on Government Street.
